Personnel Administrator Is Suggested To Combat Leaves

By Susan Rand

This fall the School Committee faced a number of requests for unpaid leaves of absences, internal transfers and empty positions in the public school system. Perhaps one way persons who would help town officials understand why teachers are leaving the schools is a personnel administrator, someone who would jointly manage the town's hiring for both the school department and the various town offices. There isn't such a position now and some town and school officials are lobbying for the creation of such a post.

Working together, Town Manager Kenneth Mahoney and Supt. of Schools Kenneth R. Seifert have applied for a grant that would partly fund a shared personnel administrator for the first three years of the position, after which the position would fall to the town for funding.

In a state program called the Incentive Aid Program, the $30,000 plus position would be 75 per cent funded in the first year, that being 1985; 50 per cent funded by state monies in the second year, and 25 per cent paid for out of state coffers in the third year. Mahoney told THE TOWNSMAN he hopes to hear whether Andover has won grant money by the first of October. If the town is left out in the first round of funding Andover will apply for money that becomes available in November, he said.

When School Committee members discussed the personnel proposal on Tuesday night there were mixed feelings about the idea. A vote, after much discussion, yielded support from members Robert F. Smith, Michael R. Giammusso and Chairman Donald W. Robb. Susan T. Poore was opposed to the plan and Richard W. Neal passed on the vote saying he wanted to "see where we are going on joint ventures," with the town administrators.

(As an aside Neal criticized one such "joint venture" when he said the members of the selectmen-appointed Lighting Committee should have first consulted the school board about erecting lights on the Lovely Field, at Andover High School. Saying he kept reading in the newspaper that "we" are buying lights for Lovely Field, Neal said he wished someone had consulted the School Committee before the lighting decision was made.)

When discussion on the personnel proposal brought dissension from two school board members, Chairman Robb asked member Giammusso if he wanted to withdraw his motion indicating support from the committee when that support might not be unanimous. Giammusso decided to let his motion stand.

How the mixed endorsement will effect the grant request is uncertain, said Mark Morse a staffer in the Executive Office of Community Development, who is jointly sponsoring the million-dollar grant program with the state Department of Education. Morse said that he thought the Andover proposal, one of 60 for the first $1 million of funding, was an interesting idea. The program Andover has applied for was created to foster state and municipal cooperation, he said, and state officials will be looking for that mutual work when they make their funding decisions which Morse said would

Senate, Congress Races Lure
For Primary Voting Tuesday

Hotly contested races for the state's senate seat and for the Fifth Congressional District representative's race as well as a handful of local contests will be the drawing cards for Andover residents when they enter the voting booths this Tuesday, Sept. 18.

But this fall, for the first time, voters in Andover won't all vote at the same place. When voting begins at 7 a.m., those voters in precincts one, three and eight will mark their ballots at the Senior Citizen Center, at the back of the town office building. Voters must enter the new voting place on Whittier Court and exit onto Bartlett Street, said Town Clerk Elden R. Salter, who speculated the turnout would be between 55 and 60% of Andover's registered voters. Voters in precincts two, four, five, six and seven will vote, as usual, at the Dunn Gymnasium, at the Andover High School, Shawsheen Road.

Salter said the two voting places are scheduled for both this primary and for the presidential election, on Tuesday, Nov. 6. He added that for the March 25 town election voting will be back to the high school gym for all Andover voters.

The state primary election and registration drives to recruit new voters, many of whom have signed up with the presidential election in mind, brings just over 300 new Andover voters to the polling places.

Assistant Town Clerk Olga Palenski told THE TOWNSMAN that 316 Andover residents, approximately one percent of the town population, registered at the two special registration sessions. On Saturday, Aug. 18, 67 new voters signed up at Town Hall. And on Tuesday, Aug. 21, which was the last day to register to vote for the September primary, 249 persons registered, Palenski said.

Although neither the Democratic or Republican town parties formally worked to register new voters a group of Democrats made calls to young residents who weren't registered to vote, said Mary Jane Powell, one of those making the phone contacts. Powell and Andover Republican party head Robert Merrill

Time Limits Established For Parking

Construction crews are still working on the new town hall parking lots, but the selectmen have already set time limits on parking spaces there, to become effective as soon as the lots are ready for use.

At the town manager's recommendation, the board Monday night voted unanimously to limit parking to 15 minutes in the circular driveway in front of the Whittier Street entrance, as well as in spaces designated for handicapped parking.

The remaining lots near the town offices on Barlet Street, and school offices and the Senior Center on Whittier Street, will be limited to two-hour parking. Town Manager Kenneth Mahony said town and school employees will be given permits to allow them all-day parking; he estimated that ten spaces will be left free for visitor parking in each two-hour area.

Some parking will also be available on the west side of Bartlet Street to catch any visitors' overflow, the manager added.

Mahony expects work around the offices (formerly East Junior High School) to be finished next month.

Child Care Committee Reconvening

The Department of Community Services is reconvening its school-age child-care sub-committee. The objective is to set up a program for extended day care (early morning/late afternoon) in the Andover elementary schools. Those interested should contact the Department of Community Services. Anyone interested, whether previously involved in the Child Care Committee or not, should contact the DCS office in the town Offices, Bartlet Street, Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Licenses, Permits Approved

During a 30-minute meeting at town offices on Bartlet Street Monday night, the Board of Selectmen's main order of business was the approval of several licenses and permits.

New England Telephone and Telegraph Co. received permission to locate a line of wires, cables, poles and fixtures along Old River Road, about 260 feet northeast of Laurel Lane. NET & T also won permission to lay and maintain underground conduits and manholes under Frontage Way, near the Bruk site.

Bay State Gas received permission to excavate at 3 and 1 Bancroft Road, 11 College Circle, in Suncrest Road for 382 South Main St., and at 181 Elm St. to install gas services; and at 9 Torrence St. to renew gas service.

The Andover Council on Aging was granted a one-day all-alcoholic beverages licenses for two events: a British Fling dinner dance, 5:30 to 10 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 22, and an Oktoberfest, 5:30 to 10 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 27. Both festivities will take place at the Senior Center in town offices on Whittier Street.

And the Christian Formation Center was granted one-day all-alcoholic beverage licenses for a wedding reception, noon to 8 p.m. Oct. 6; the Merrimack Valley Philharmonic Orchestra, 6 p.m. to midnight Oct. 13; a wedding reception, 4 p.m. to midnight Oct. 14; a wedding reception, 1 to 9 p.m. Oct. 20; and a dinner dance, 6 p.m. to 1 a.m. Oct. 27.

Band Show Scheduled

The Andover High School Golden Warrior Marching Band will host its fifth annual Marching Band Show and Competition at Eugene Lovely Field Sunday, Sept. 30, at 1 p.m. Sponsored by the Andover Band Association Inc., this event benefits the Andover High School Band and is sanctioned by the New England Scholastic Band Association under its rules and regulations.

Last year several thousand spectators enjoyed the 15 bands who appeared in competition.

Chairman Doug Snow anticipates being able to announce this year's lineup of bands within the next week, but has indicated that the 1984 show will be just as entertaining as last year.

In addition, the University of Lowell Marching Band will appear in exhibition.

Summer Series Successful

The Department of Community Services thanks the Andover families and friends who attended and supported the summer movie and concert series at Doherty Junior High.

Both the Monday movie program, which offered a mixture of Walt Disney and other feature films, and the Wednesday concert program, which featured styles ranging from country to jazz to classical, offered something for just about everyone.

These programs would not be possible without the support of many local banks and businesses. The Department of Community Services thanks contributors for their support: Andover Chamber of Commerce, Hewlett-Packard Co., Raytheon Co., Andover Savings Bank, Scanlon's, New England Stores, Cole Hardware, Backstreet, Barcelos, Bordon Chemical Co., Town Printing, Kenneth Participants will be able to progress at their own pace. Classes meet Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 6:15 a.m. to 7:15 a.m. or 7:15 p.m. to 8:15 p.m. A fitness testing clinic for all beginners is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 15.

Other fitness classes include: Aerobic Dance, a physical fitness program that's choreographed to lively music. This program is taught by trained, qualified instructors who know how to make exercising fun. Beginner classes meet

Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. or Tuesday and Thursday from 7:15 p.m. to 8:15 p.m. Advanced classes meet Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 10:05 a.m. to 11:05 a.m. or Tuesday and Thursday from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. Belly Dancing will meet Monday from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. or Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. Weight Management, a group discussion and counseling class on nutrition and diet formation, will be held on Wednesdays from 6:15 p.m. to 7 p.m. or Fridays from 9 a.m. to 9:45 a.m. Folk Dancing will be held Fridays from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. There are also informal games of basketball, volleyball and badminton. DCS Plans Fall Events

The fall schedule of events sponsored by Andover's Department of Community Services (DCS) includes faces, theater trips, holiday events and a trip to Montreal.

Starting off the fall season is the annual arts festival, Art-In-The-Park, set for Saturday, Sept. 15, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., in Central Park, Bartlet Street. The free exhibit will include art from all over New England, according to DCS planners.

The first theater trip will travel to the Wang Center, in Boston, to see "The King and I," on Wednesday, Sept. 19. And on Wednesday, Oct. 17, the Charles Playhouse is the scene of the DCS-sponsored trip to "Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All For You." Registrations for "King" are now being taken and begin on Monday, Sept. 17, for "Sister Mary."

Two races are included on the DCS fall schedule. The first, a bike race on Saturday, Sept. 29, will cover ten miles in town and feature free t-shirts to the first 100 who sign up. On Saturday, Oct. 20 a five mile race is set to race throughout the town, again with 100 free shirts to the first entrants. Runners and bikers may sign up for both at the DCS office.

For those who prefer to move a bit slower, a narrated river cruise will admire the Connecticut foliage on Saturday, Oct. 6. Registrations for the Connecticut River cruise are now being accepted.

The Doherty Junior High School auditorium will be transformed into a haunted house for Halloween, on Wednesday, Oct. 31, from 6 to 9 p.m.

Fish can be susceptible to seasickness. Artificial "storm waves" made in a glass bowl, in a scientific study, resulted in seasick goldfish.

Choral Society Rehearsing

The Andover Choral Society, under the direction of J. Everett Collins and Bruce Adami, will begin its 55th consecutive season next week.

Rehearsals for the traditional presentation of Handel's "The Messiah" will begin Tuesday, Sept. 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the music room at Andover High School.

All people who love to sing are invited. No auditions are required for the chorus.

Tryouts for the solo passages, however, will be held October 14 at 2 p.m. in the music room at Andover High School.

Forum Presents Candidates

An in-depth look at the candidates for the U.S. Senate sent from Massachusetts has been produced at Merrimack College for telecast on area cable systems.

"The Merrimack Forum," a public service program of the college, is a three-hour look at the two Republican and four Democratic candidates for the Senate seat being vacated by U.S. Sen. Paul Tsongas. Each half-hour segment includes a presentation by one of the six candidates (or his representative) followed by questions from Merrimack College faculty and students. The first hour features Republicans Ray Shamie and Elliot Richardson; the second hour, Democrats David Bartley and Michael Connolly; the third hour, Democrats James Shannon and the manager of the John Kerry campaign, Paul Rosenberg.

Dr. Eugene Declercq of the Merrimack College political science department is the executive producer and host of the series. Producers are Stephen Bahre, director of library services, and Dr. James Benze, associate professor of political science.

Rollins Cable will air the program on Channel 13 in the Andover, North Reading, Middleton and Dracut areas on Thursday, Sept. 13, 4 p.m. to 7 p.m.; Friday, Sept. 14, 9 a.m. to noon and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday, Sept. 15, noon to 3 p.m.; Monday, Sept. 17, noon to 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

small appliances, books and records and many other unusual items.

Clothing for men, women and children, some almost new, will also be on sale. Donations may be left at the YWCA any time before the sale or pickup is possible by calling the Y.

Instructors Added To Staff

The Looking Glass, Inc., begins its third year with new instructors added to the staff. Suzuki Violin, which has been very successful, is now offering more classes, especially to preschoolers in the afternoons.

David Rudge will join the staff as a Suzuki Violin instructor. Ridge is a graduate of the Hartt School of Music with a Bachelor of Music degree. While there he was a soloist with the Hartt String Orchestra. He has studied under Renato Bonacini and is a concert violinist. Rudge is also a Suzuki instructor at the New School in Cambridge. He will teach children starting at the age of 2½ for The Looking Glass. He also advocates teaching parent and child to play the violin.

Jean Sawyer Twombly is a Suzuki Violin specialist from Prospect, Ill. She is a graduate of Susquehanna University with a B.S. in Music and did graduate work at Manhattan School of Music. Twombly has studied with Eugene Jacobowsky, N.M., at Julliard in New York City and with the concert master at the New York Philharmonic. She will teach Suzuki Violin to children ages 3 and up.

Elizabeth Stokes Bergeson will teach Eurhythmics, a method of teaching children to understand music with the use of movement. These courses provide sound foundations for a primary music experience and is an excellent adjunct to instrumental study. Children starting as early as two years can benefit from this. Bergeson has a Bachelor of Arts of Music History and Voice from St. Olaf College, Northfield, MN. She has done work at the Montessori School in Minneapolis and has experience using music therapy with special needs children.

Brochures are available at Memorial Hall Library. These courses are offered in cooperation with the Department of Community Services.

"My daughter just graduated from college. She worked as hard as any man. Will she have the same chances?"

PHIL SHEA

"My daughter Linda just graduated, summa cum laude, from the University of New Hampshire. As a Chemical Engineer she will be entering a male dominated field. She worked just as hard as any male in her graduating class. But will she have the same potential for growth? Will she receive equal pay for equal work?"

Too many roadblocks are thrown in the way of women as they try to better their lives. Childcare opportunities are expensive and hard to find. Pay equity has yet to become a reality. Pension benefits are biased against homemakers. Our educational system still discriminates against women. Poverty has become feminized.

The first step is to deinstitutionalize discrimination based on gender. I co-sponsored the Equal Rights Amendment in the State Legislature and I will take that fight to Congress.

But we must also look at each and every government program. From social security to school athletics we must eliminate the built in bias against women.

Abraham Lincoln said that a house divided could not stand. As long as this country still treats half the population as second class citizens, these words still hold true."

PAY EQUITY

"Very simple. If a man and a woman are doing the same job they should get the same pay. To really attack the problem we must see that job categories dominated by women — nurses, teachers, secretaries are compensated as well as equivalent areas where men are more prevalent."

SOCIAL SECURITY

"Divorced homemakers married for less than 10 years get no benefits. 85% of the people receiving the minimum benefit are women. We must overhaul Social Security not just to guarantee its stability, but to prevent further sex based discrimination."

CHILDCARE

"As long as women bear the burden of raising our families, the lack of quality affordable day care holds them back. Recent cuts have made this problem worse. I have supported and will continue to do so, incentives and legislation that would encourage expanded day care facilities."

Keystone Program Helps Patients, Families Cope

Recognizing that shock, anger, fear and guilt are common reactions to the diagnosis of cancer, Bon Secours Hospital offers Keystone, a cancer education program/support group for cancer patients and their families and friends. An eight-week series offered free of charge as a public service, Keystone provides up-to-date information on the various aspects of cancer care and treatment.

From September 25 to November 13, Keystone facilitators will lead discussions on many issues pertaining to cancer care such as how several individuals fought cancer and won; the resources available in the community; how medication and radiation therapy used for cancer treatment affects daily living; a comprehensive look at cancer and the methods available for treatment today; and the emotions commonly shared by individuals with cancer and their families.

Keystone programs are held on consecutive Tuesdays at 7 p.m. in the Sister M. Cornelius Cremin Memorial Suite, adjacent to the Chapel.

Facilitators Judy Perrone, R.N., B.S.N., staff nurse, Bon Secours Hospital, and Evelyn Burke, R.N., B.S.N., nursing educator, Northern Essex Community College Licensed Practical Nursing Program will moderate each session. They have had extensive experience working with cancer patients and their families and have been actively involved in the Keystone program for several years.

For a copy of the new Keystone brochure or more information regarding the upcoming series, contact Bon Secours Hospital's Department of Education.

Canada Honors Andover Native Who Founded Bridge Company

By Sue Aucella Deacon

Junior Achievement of Canada has honored one of the earliest captains of Canadian industry by inducting Job Abbott — engineer, real estate developer, patent lawyer, entrepreneur and Andover native — into the Canadian Business Hall of Fame.

Job Abbott, who was born in Andover in 1845 and died here in 1896, was president and chief engineer of Dominion Bridge Co., a company he founded in 1882. When the Canadian Pacific railway began to span the new nation (until 1867 a British colony), Dominion Bridge Co. built its bridges, from Lake Nipissing in the east to the Pacific Ocean.

The company Job Abbott founded 102 years ago is alive and flourishing, although Dominion Bridge is now just one part of a multi-national corporation called AMCA (for American-Canadian) International, based in Toronto, Canada, and Hanover, N.H.

When Junior Achievement of Canada wanted to find Job Abbott's American descendants, they contacted the Andover Historical Society — which led the organization to the engineer's great-nephew, Albert Abbott of Danvers.

The Canadian business organization presented Mr. Abbott with its Hall of Fame trophy — a polished nickel laurel leaf superimposed on a bronze maple leaf — at an April 26 black-tie dinner at the Winnipeg Convention Centre in Winnipeg, Canada.

Job Abbott was one of six pioneers of Canadian business to be honored during the ceremony, which was part of the 1984 Canadian Business Leadership Conference in Winnipeg.

Albert Abbott attended the award banquet with his wife, Geraldine, sat at the head table, and accepted the Hall of Fame trophy in his great-uncle's memory.

"I am thankful that we live in the kind of free enterprise economic system in which men like Job Abbott flourished, and spawned impressive enterprises such as Dominion Bridge and AMCA International," Mr. Abbott said in an acceptance speech before an audience of nearly 1,000 people.

A highlight of the evening was a video profile of Job Abbott and each of his fellow Hall of Fame laureates, narrated by Knowlton Nash (the Canadian equivalent, Mr. Abbott explains, of Walter Cronkite). Albert Abbott contributed for use in that visual presentation photographs, letters and other family remembrances of Job Abbott that have been passed down to him through the years.

According to Job Abbott's obituary in an August 1896 edition of the TOWNSMAN, he was born to Nathan B. and Elizabeth L. Abbott "in Scotland district, Andover, Mass., on the homestead of Captain Job Abbott, for whom he was named." (The Abbott homestead, built in 1685, still stands in Ballardvale.)

Young Abbott was educated in the Scotland district school and at Phillips Academy, and graduated from Harvard University in 1864 with a degree in civil engineering. He worked for the Long Island Railroad, and later the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago line, before venturing to Canton, Ohio. There he became a land promoter, mining engineer and patent lawyer — and vice president and chief engineer of Wrought Iron Bridge Co.

Job Abbott, according to a history of Dominion Bridge/AMCA International published by the corporation (Visions in Steel, Toronto: Key Porter Books, 1982), "was exactly the sort of eclectic visionary who saw himself prospering in booming Canada. When the Toronto Bridge Co. was formed, he moved across the border and became its chief engineer."

That was in 1879; the Toronto Bridge Co. gave way to Dominion Bridge of Montreal, a company with larger ambitions, three years later.

Abbott formed his new company to build iron and steel bridges — at a time when most bridges were still built of masonry and wood — for the Canadian Pacific Railway. In 1880, the CPR had contracted with the Canadian government to build 2,600 miles of railway from the Atlantic to the Pacific, including more than 1,000 miles of line in Ontario and Quebec.

Backed by an international partnership (including Scottish financiers, Canadian iron merchants and American engineers), Dominion Bridge Co. built first an 813-foot cantilever bridge over the Reversing Falls of the St. John River in New Brunswick, completed in 1884. Next came the 3,457-foot Lachine Bridge over the St. Lawrence River in Lachine, Quebec, opened in 1886.

As the railway progressed, Abbott's company built bridges all across Canada, ever "more complex and more daring," according to Visions in Steel, as the rail lines crossed "remarkably scenic but hazardous countryside."

From its earliest years, Dominion Bridge erected steel-frame buildings all over Canada as well. Among the most notable of these are the famed Chateau Frontenac in Quebec City, Quebec (1892), Union Station in Ottawa, Ontario (1900), and the legislative buildings in Regina, Saskatchewan (1910).

As Dominion's president and engineer, Abbott's responsibilities included not only designing bridges, but also "negotiating with governments and other companies, drawing up bids, purchasing supplies and equipment and drumming up additional financial support where and when needed." He took an annual salary of $5,000 — plus a ten-percent commission on all company business.

Drawn by his interests in American business (he was a consultant to a number of railway, bridge and rapid transit projects in the United States), Abbott left Montreal and opened his own engineering offices in New York City in 1890. He remained, however, a consultant to Dominion Bridge until his death six years later.

One of Abbott's final accomplishments was the construction of more than 200 miles of railroad line for the Bangor and Aroostook Railroad in northern Maine; he was consulting engineer for that project.

While working in Maine, the engineer was "taken sick in March, 1895," the TOWNSMAN wrote, and "manfully fought through his work in Maine and although suffering much, he never complained, and only gave up in April last, on the insistence of his friends."

Abbott died on Aug. 18, 1896, at his mother's home on Chestnut Street, five days before his 51st birthday. He was buried in a family lot in the South Parish Church. He left a widow but no children.

Albert Abbott calls his great-uncle a man of "foresight." Junior Achievement of Canada, by choosing Job Abbott as one of its Hall of Fame laureates, has recognized him as a leader who made "outstanding contributions to the development of private enterprise in Canada."

Joining Job Abbott as 1984 Hall of Fame laureates were industrialist Frank Sobey, 82, the only living laureate chosen this year; Jeffrey Hall Brock, insurance pioneer (1850-1915); Joseph Masson, the first French-Canadian millionaire (1791-1847); Colonel Sam McLaughlin, automobile magnate and philanthropist (1871-1972); and Phillip S. Ross, founder of Canada's first accounting firm (1827-1907).

Kitchen Design

David A. Clement, designer

"A place for everything, and everything in its place" should be the motto for a dream kitchen. To cut down the walking distance between work centers, arrange for storage of materials and utensils where they are first needed. A well-planned kitchen should not only look good but make the cook who is using it feel content. A handsome kitchen that is exhausting or uncomfortable to work in is, at best, an expensive mistake. It cannot be too often emphasized that there is no "ideal" kitchen. No magic formula exists that is automatically right for everyone. However, there is no mystique either. Kitchen planning is a matter of common sense and sound research has considerably narrowed the field of error.

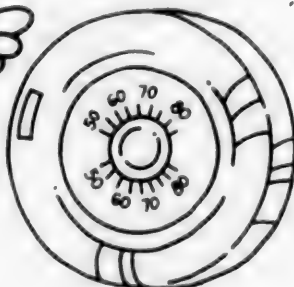

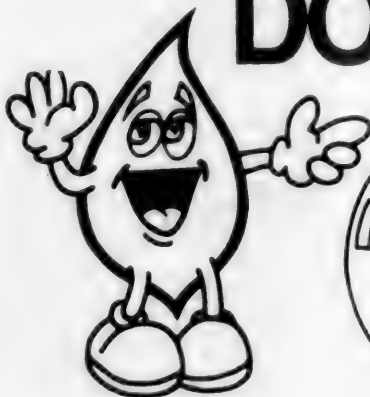

One of the most important steps to a kitchen remodeling, even before selecting the style of cabinets is planning. Make sure you are not seeking more than your kitchen can handle. When you deal with the experts at WINDSOR KITCHENS you'll be talking to people who know kitchens and how to furnish them. We have an extensive design service that will show you that kitchens are more than just cabinets. Come down to 1181 Boston Rd., Ward Hill, for your dream kitchen Mon-Thurs. 9-5:30, Fri. 11-8; Sat. 11-2 and by appointment. Tel. 372-3444.

HANDY HINT:

Let the room itself have a say in the design of the kitchen.

Iora Alexander

For the first time in 20 years an elementary school principal has been appointed from within the Andover public school system to head a school here.

Iora Alexander, who lives at 25 Canterbury St. in Andover, was unanimously appointed principal of the Bancroft School by the four School Committee members present at the Wednesday, Sept. 5, meeting where she was one of four finalists interviewed for the post.

A teacher and administrator in Andover for the last 15 years, Alexander was most recently an instructional specialist at Bancroft, a position assumed last year. She was also an assistant principal at the West Elementary School for three and one half years, and said that job gave her "a taste of administration" work.

"I enjoyed my involvement at West," she said in an interview at her new Bancroft office on Monday morning. "And I felt that I was at a time in my career when this would be a natural step for me."

Apparently School Committee members Michael R. Giammusso, Richard W. Neal, Susan R. Poore and Robert F. Smith agreed that the principal's post was the next move for Alexander and they appointed her on a motion made by Poore, after Superintendent of Schools Kenneth R. Seifert recommended Alexander for the position. Board Chairman Donald W. Robb was absent.

Before assuming the assistant principal's position at West Elementary, Alexander was a guidance counselor there and at West Junior High School for six years. She taught fourth, fifth and sixth grade at West Elementary for six years before becoming a guidance counselor, a teacher in Newton for three years, Alexander, who is the mother of four children, received her bachelor's degree in education from Boston University. Her master's degree came from Rhode Island College, work that she did while her children, now all grown with families of their own, were still young. She also holds a certificate of advanced graduate study from Boston State College.

Besides the hours she will put in at Bancroft, Alexander is fond of spending time at the beach, as demonstrated by her deep summer tan. She also enjoys spending time with her three, soon to be four, grandchildren, she said.

An early priority Alexander said she has as head of the 25 teachers and six specialists at Bancroft, is working with parents to establish "comfortable" relationships with the parents of the 560 students at Bancroft.

"After all," she added, "we are working with their most important possession."

The job carries a salary of $33,000 to $38,000, but where Alexander falls in that range won't be determined until a contract is negotiated between the Andover's school administration union and the School Committee.

The vacancy at Bancroft came after then principal Lois Haslam was named assistant superintendent for elementary education. Bancroft third grade teacher Delores Pelc was temporarily filling in as principal until a successor to Haslam was chosen.

Also interviewed for the Bancroft position were Suzanne McGhee, an elementary school principal from Skowhegan, Maine; Margaret Griffin, also an elementary school principal, from Swayze, N.H.; and Marc Ladin, a Colchester, Conn., resident who is an assistant principal of an elementary school there.

There were 49 persons who applied for the principal's job. That field was narrowed down by a screening committee composed of parents of Bancroft students, teachers and school administrators was chaired by Haslam.

Headmaster McNemar Welcomes New Phillips Academy Students

Phillips Academy begins its 207th academic year this week with 468 local boys and girls matriculating as day students in a diverse student body of 1,217. This year, thanks to a scholarship budget of more than $2.5 million, Andover could choose 46 new students from 3,000 applicants without reference to financial circumstances of their families. Headmaster Donald W. McNemar welcomed each one personally to the school.

McNemar sees real progress toward the Andover trustees' goal: that Andover serve as a national public school, open to any talented young person of character and motivation. He noted that record annual giving by alumni and parents this year helped achieve such economic diversity. In racial diversity, the number of PA black and hispanic students has virtually doubled since 1981-82, although still far below their percentages among high-school-aged students nationally.

Development of a Chinese Language Program of three years' depth will begin this year under a new full-time faculty member, Ronald Speirs. Phillips Academy has been awarded a grant of $40,000 by the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation, one of a number of such grants aimed at increasing the number of schools offering Chinese language programs. A visiting scholar from the People's Republic of China, Ni Xiaomin of the Harbin Institute of Technology, will assist Speirs and teach Chinese while pursuing her own studies as a teacher of English. Mrs. Ni arrived last week, accompanying three P.R.C. students from Harbin. This is the fifth year that students from the People's Republic of China have spent a senior year at Andover before attending U.S. universities.

The Harbin-Andover connection became a true exchange this summer and the first of its kind in the nation when five Andover students traveled to the People's Republic for summer study at Harbin Institute and a visit to Beijing. With them, at various points, were Speirs and Bartyl Tirana, a student's father and alumnus of Andover who was instrumental in arranging Harbin students coming to Andover five years ago.

Latin America will be the focus of the Headmaster's Symposium this winter, open to the public. McNemar said, "The Americas: A Dialog North and South" will be a series of lectures and films in January and February exploring the history and the issues that both bind together and divide the two great continents of the Western Hemisphere.

This year Phillips Academy welcomes a husband/wife team as co-writers-in-residence, Margaret Gibson and David McCain, who join the English depart-

Facelift Due At Shawsheen

The Shawsheen School's playground will get a facelift this Saturday, Sept. 15, when Andover's residents are invited to join the school's parent organization in working on the play area behind the Ann's Lane building.

Sharon Provencher, who is in charge of the social activities group of the new parent organization, said work will include painting games on the asphalt around the school, the planting of flower bulbs and possible placement of a sandbox or two.

Now home to Andover's kindergarten classes the one-time elementary school and later school administration building was sized down to fit the town's youngest students and opened this fall for the first time as an early childhood education center.

Organizers of Saturday's work party, which will run from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., are asking for donation of flower bulbs, which they hope to plant so they will bloom next spring. And as a fundraiser they will auction off lunches on Saturday to raise money for their beautification efforts. Those attending are asked to pack lunches and mark what is inside and how many persons the lunch will feed. The contents will then be auctioned off that afternoon, at lunchtime.

A Tale of Two Senators

In 1972, Chet Atkins was elected to the Massachusetts State Senate.

Since that time, he has been one of the most distinguished Senators on Beacon Hill.

As Chairman of Senate Ways and Means, he has assembled a staff and created a committee that is outstanding in this country.

As Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, he has turned the party from debt to solvency.

He has been a leader, often a lonely pioneer, in the major issues of his day.

Now he's running for Congress.

Another State Senator is running against him.

This opponent would like you to think that he stands with Chet Atkins on the issues.

It's not so.

Chet sponsored the Massachusetts nuclear freeze referendum...alone. His opponent voted to destroy it.

Chet has a long and consistent record of support on women's issues. He has demanded shelters for abused women and children. His opponent voted against them.

Chet voted for tax breaks for the elderly. His opponent voted to make them pay meals taxes.

And that's how the Tale of Two Senators goes. Sen. Chet Atkins takes strong, courageous stands...and his opponent trying to ride in on Chet's coattails.

This ad has been paid for by people who want their Congressman to be strong and courageous.

And who expect him to tell the truth about his record.

Chet Atkins...

He has done MORE in the Senate.
He will do MORE in Congress.

Birthday Coincides With Charles' Appearance Here

Ray Charles

"Ladies and gentlemen, a man and his soul... Mr. Ray Charles." And thus has Ray Charles been introduced thousands of times around the world. Ray Charles is a singer, rhythm and blues, country and western, jazz and rock musician who has not only been one of America's top artists for many years, but a popular favorite in countries around the world.

In September Ray Charles celebrates his 54th birthday—a celebration which coincides with the second season opening celebration of the J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts in Andover where he will appear for two shows on Sept. 23.

Charles' pain and blindness have shaped his genius. He is alone. His blindness has made him a solitary figure in his art, but the blackness of his life has been a reflection of his race, not his soul. For 35 years, the world has battered him, beat him down, made his heart ache; and the only balm for his pain is his music.

To understand Ray Charles, you must begin with the pain. "Soul" is an all-purpose word, indefinable, meaning some mystical inner quality that a singer can dredge out of his being and communicate to a listener. No singer has it or dispenses it the way Ray Charles does. He takes a lyric that he himself has written, punched out laboriously in Braille, and makes it some of the best blues of the decade.

"Soul is when you can take a song and make it part of you—a part that's so true, so real, people think it must have happened to you. I'm not satisfied unless I can make them feel what I feel," says Charles. "Soul is like a spirit, a drive, a power."

Ray Charles was born with sight in Albany, GA, a cotton town where his father did odd jobs and his mother took in washing.

At three or four years of age, Ray remembers, "There was music comin' from the shack next door. There was an old gentleman, Mr. Wiley Pittman, and he had an old beat-up piano on the front porch." First Ray would only stand by the piano and listen.

"Pretty soon, Mr. Wiley Pittman would slide over and I'd sit down and bang away up on the high keys. I wasn't playing' nothin'. He knew it and I knew it, but he'd smile and he'd say, 'That's good, that's good, sonny. But you gotta practice,'" Ray says, smiling.

Ray's eyes didn't go quickly "They just started shortin' down on me," is the way he puts it now. Ray's mother tried to get him to a doctor, but this was the South in 1936.

Suzanne Staples will co-teach the nursery students and will teach art to the first and second grade students. She earned her bachelor's degree in Early Childhood Elementary Education from Central Connecticut State College and has taken graduate courses from the University of Lowell. She was a teacher for Head Start in Framingham, directed a day care center in Lowell and was the director and head teacher at Burlington Day Care before coming to Pike.

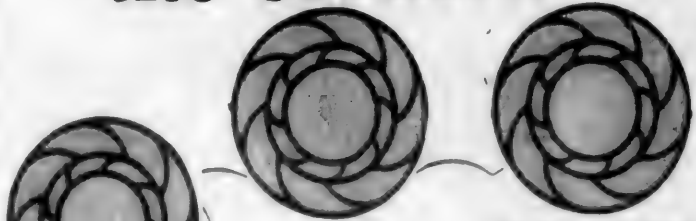

Cynthia Velishka, new to Pike School last fall, will expand her duties this year. In addition to teaching art to all Middle School students, she will teach social studies and serve as a homeroom teacher. Velishka graduated from the University of Tampa with a degree in Fine Arts and has taken education courses at Salem State College.

In the years since Ray has searched for a reason for his blindness. Medically, he has been told it was probably glaucoma. He was totally blind by the age of seven. His mother gave him strength and a lot of love. "She would kneel down and say, 'You're blind, not stupid. You lost your sight, not your mind.' And then she'd hug me."

Ray learned to read Braille, type, make rooms and baskets, but he was more interested in playing the piano. He was taught to play the classics, but he soon found boogie woogie was more fun. And, jazz... that was a way of expressing himself. "You improvise. All you have is a foundation, a jumpin'-off place and as far as you fly depends on how strong your wings are," he says.

When Ray was 15 his mother and father died. Completely alone in the world, he decided he was strong enough. He quit school and joined a dance band in Jacksonville, Fla. He toured Florida and Georgia, and although blind, realized soon enough that he was regarded as nothing but a black piano player.

"I gotta get out of the South," Ray told a friend in the band. "What's the furthestest place on the map and still be in the United States?"

"New York is five inches away on the map," reported his friend placing his thumb on Florida and his forefinger on New York.

"Don't want to go to New York," countered Ray, "too big."

"L.A. is seven inches away," said the friend.

"Keep goin'," said Ray.

"Then you must want Seattle," said the friend. "It's eight inches from Florida."

"Seattle it is," said Ray. And Seattle it was.

Ray went to Seattle in 1948. He found a rooming house where, after sleeping off his bus trip across country, he asked the landlady if any nightclubs were still open that night. He found a dive called the Rockin' Chair where he got permission to play. He was offered a job singing and playing there.

After an unsuccessful try at recording in Los Angeles through a man who had spotted him at the Rockin' Chair, Ray joined the Lowell Fullson's band as an added attraction and worked a year on the road. During that time he began developing his own style, mixing blues and jazz and gospel, finding mainly a Negro underground audience.

Unable to find the right mix of musicians for his own compositions, all painstakingly punched out in Braille for every instrument, brass and wind, in the band, he formed his own group in 1954. Soon he became known as owner of one of the best small jazz units in the country. His recording, on Atlantic, in 1955 of "I Got A Woman" shot him to national fame, breaking through for the first time to a white audience. From then on his band and fame grew and he recorded hits like "Born to Lose," "Georgia on My Mind" and "Hallelujah, I Love her so."

The Merrimack Valley will welcome the unequalled Ray Charles to the Collins Center in Andover. For more information on the Ray Charles concert, featuring the Raelettes and the Ray Charles Orchestra on September 23 at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m., call the center.

Bon Secours Hospital Associate Hospital Director for Finance John A. Verryt recently announced appointments to two key positions at the hospital.

Richard S. Young, Bon Secours Hospital's reimbursement coordinator since 1981, was promoted to the position of chief accountant, general accounting department. Young is responsible for directing and monitoring all financial activity at the hospital and the Bon Secours Salem Health Center. Along with preparing the budget and controlling cash flow, the chief accountant evaluates the financial feasibility of proposed changes in operations and recommends policy changes in accordance with local and national current events.

Young formerly served as accounting manager at McLean Hospital in Belmont. A graduate of Bentley College, he is a member of the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Benjamin E. Sylvanowicz joins the staff as patient accounts manager and will be responsible for supervising and coordinating the credit and collections functions for Bon Secours Hospital and the Bon Secours Salem Health Center. Working with department heads and representatives from various third party payors, the patient accounts manager ensures that patient billing and collections are handled expeditiously and in a manner that serves the best interest of the patients and hospital. Sylvanowicz was patient accounts director at Lynn Hospital, Lynn, and has held fiscal positions at The Cambridge Hospital, Cambridge, and Chilton Corporation, Dallas, TX. He attended North Shore Community College and Boston University.

Both men are members of the Healthcare Financial Management Association.

In his welcoming announcement, Verryt commented, "Both Mr. Sylvanowicz and Mr. Young bring outstanding backgrounds and extensive experience to their positions. The hospital is fortunate to be gaining two new department heads who are sure to be assets to our fiscal management team."

President Carter Will Headline Speakers Series

Salem State College President James T. Amsler has announced that the 39th President of the United States, Jimmy Carter, will kick-off the third annual Salem State College Series with a post-election day analysis on Wednesday, Nov. 7.

Carter's lecture, in addition to analyzing the outcome of the Reagan-Mondale contest, will set the tone for this year's series, which is an in-depth review of the role of the modern American presidency entitled "A Forum on the American Presidency." Dr. Doris Kearns Goodwin, noted author and scholar on the evolution of the American presidency, and Kevin McCarthy, award-winning star of stage and screen, will deliver the second and third lectures in the series, respectively.

Because of his former relationship with Presidential candidate Walter Mondale and his defeat by President Ronald Reagan in 1980, Carter's analysis of the outcome of the campaign will prove to be timely and insightful. He will comment on the expanding role of the President.

The former Governor of Georgia assumed the Presidency in 1977 and immediately impacted on world affairs. Although he served during a difficult time, his courage, strength and commitment to world peace and human rights was exemplified when he performed the seemingly impossible task of bringing together Begin and Sadat at the Camp David Accords.

On January 23, 1985, three days after the inauguration, Goodwin, former confidant of President Lyndon Johnson and an expert on the American Presidency, will analyze and place in a historical context the inaugural address. She will trace the evolution of the institution of the presidency and will cite various Presidents and significant decisions which have had a profound impact on the highest office of the land.

Her stunning portrayal of our 36th President in "Lyndon Johnson and the American Dream" received widespread acclaim and was on The New York Times bestseller list for 13 weeks. She is completing a three-generation history of the Kennedy family to be published next year and then filmed for an ABC 10-hour miniseries.

McCarthy's stage and podium performance of "Give 'Em Hell, Harry," written by Sam Gallu, will conclude the series on April 17, 1985.

Series ticket subscriptions are available. All programs are at the O'Keefe Sports Complex at 8 p.m.

Community Nursing Care Has Grown To Meet Modern Needs

By Susan Rand

Almost 40 years ago Helen Woodbury was Andover's only community-based nurse. She ran the Red Cross unit here, ministering to military families and running the blood banks.

Today, she is still the primary contact many local people have with nursing in their homes but now she works with over 100 nurses, therapists and health aides who serve Andover and neighboring towns.

Community, or home health nursing, has grown from a one-woman operation into a business. Most of the nurses visiting homes and conducting clinics in Andover come from the Greater Lawrence Home Health and Nursing Services, an organization that employs health workers who serve elders both at home and in local clinics, work with new mothers and their babies, teach speech and physical therapy training and provide nursing care to those temporarily ill who are at home.

Home Health is based in North Andover, at 451 Andover St., where the business occupies the third floor of one of the Bixby Buildings. There are almost 5,000 home visits made each year by employees of the organization, the funding for which comes from grants, United Fund monies and private donations.

The home nursing organization also has a volunteer component called the Hospice of Greater Lawrence, the members of which work with terminally ill persons.

Nurse Woodbury's community nursing career, started back in August of 1945, has followed what health professionals might call a revolution of sorts in health care. Back in the 1940's when you were sick or your parents needed assistance as they got older you turned to members of your family for help. It's not the same today, explained Woodbury and her colleague Joan Arcand, who is the associate director of the home health agency.

Grandparents don't always live at home with their children and grandchildren, said Woodbury. "Nursing homes used to be a rare thing, families banded together and took care of the elderly. Now they let society take care of the elderly." And because of this organizations like Arcand and Woodbury's are more important than ever.

It is often the nurse visiting a home who spots a change in the progress of a person's illness. People look forward to their home visits or trips to the town health clinic, said Susan McKernan, a nurse who runs health clinics for elders age 60 and older. One of the more visible programs of the Greater Lawrence Home Health and Nursing Service, the health clinics regularly meet at councils on aging, community centers and elderly housing sites to check routine things such as blood pressures, prescription medications, screenings for anemia and hearing loss or diabetes checks. There are 32 clinics for elders in the area, said McKernan.

Sometimes the waiting room is like a social hour for those in line for a mini-evaluation, said McKernan, who also runs a fitness program in Methuen for elders there.

McKernan, who lives in Lawrence, and Diane Bourbeau, a visiting nurse from Methuen, decided on community nursing instead of a hospital job, like Woodbury

Mr. and Mrs. Sean M. Dowd
Dowd-Harris

Sandra Lynne Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kent E. Harris of Acton, and Sean M. Dowd, son of Carol Dowd Boileau and Edmund F. Dowd, Jr., both of Andover, were married at the Acton Congregational Church in Acton Center August 19.

The double-ring ceremony was performed at 2:30 p.m. by Dr. Richard Olmstead, minister of the church, and was followed by a reception at Stow Acres Country Club. Mrs. Katie Pearson was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of tissue taffeta with a cathedral and carried an arrangement of wild flowers.

The matron of honor, Kathleen Danneker of Jacksonville, Fla., and the bridesmaids, Jean McHugh of Acton, Sheila Dembek of Easthampton and the sisters of the groom, Colleen Brandon and Tracy Dowd of Andover, wore floor-length light blue dresses and carried blue and lavender wild flowers. The flower girls were Amanda Harris Riley of Cranston, R.I., and Jennifer Lynne O'Neill of Waltham, cousins of the bride.

Palmer Lewis of Haverhill was best man. Ushers included Scott Boileau of Peabody, Kenneth Potter of Miami, Fla., and the brothers of the bride, Scott Harris and Shawn Harris of Acton.

Guests came from Nova Scotia, Washington, Texas, Virginia, Ohio and Florida.

Following a honeymoon trip to Europe, the couple will make their home in Chapel Hill, N.C., where Mr. Dowd will work as a researcher and Mrs. Dowd as a teacher. The bride graduated from the University of Maine in Orono in Elementary Education and the groom from North Carolina State in Biology.

The Rev. Harvey Meppelink of Lexington officiated at the one o'clock ceremony. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white taffeta gown fashioned with puffed sleeves, ruffled skirt and cathedral-length train. Exhibit

The contemporary life of the Navajos and the Hopis is the focus of a dramatic photography exhibit which opens in the Peabody Museum of Salem's Mifflin Gallery on September 14 and remains on view until May 1985. The photographer is Susanne Page; the exhibit is "An Invitation to the Spirit World."

In 1974 the Hopi Tribal Council, having seen and admired an earlier book about the Navajos by Page, broke decades of self-imposed isolation and asked Page and her husband, Jake, to prepare a book about the Hopi people. Overruling a tradition that had discouraged photography on the reservation since 1910.

English Preacher Guest

The Rev. Canon Peter J. Chandler, vicar of St. Mary's Church in Andover, England, will be the preacher at the 9 a.m. and 11:15 a.m. services at the Parish of Christ Church on Central Street. Canon Chandler is an honorary canon of Winchester Cathedral and the ecumenical officer of the Church of England for the Province of Canterbury.

Canon Chandler is a World War II R.A.F. veteran who was shot down and held as a prisoner of war in Burma. At the close of the war, he remained in Rangoon to complete his theological education and was ordained a deacon in Burma. He has served on several international commissions of the Anglican Communion and has been a representative of the Anglican Congress to Cyprus. Canon Chandler will also speak at the forum which is held between the 9 a.m. and 11:15 services.

Canon Chandler's presence marks the beginning of a year of preparation for the Sesquicentennial Celebration of the founding of Christ Church. The Sesquicentennial year will begin in September 1985.

Church School To Resume

September is back-to-school time. This is also true at Christ Church where a variety of educational programs are getting underway. The Church School program will begin Sunday, Sept. 16, under the direction of the Rev. Marjean Bailey, associate rector. Curriculum based upon a storytelling technique will be used. Fall will begin with a block on King David, the story of whose life and labors are found in the Old Testament books of I and II Samuel and I and II Kings. This story is said by scholars to be among the very best court history in the world written at that time.

In each session an effort will be made to identify and share the life stories of the students that are related to David's story. In this way connections can be made between "our" story and the "Biblical" story. In addition, students and teachers together will retell these stories with an imaginative story of their own using art, music, drama and poetry.

Children who have not already registered will be able to do so on Sunday after the 9 a.m. service. At the Education Hours, between the 9 a.m. and 11:15 a.m. Sunday services, there will be a variety of educational offerings for adults. Topics will range from in-house discussions of stewardship and plans for Christ Church's Sesquicentennial Celebration to a report from the young people who participated in the New Horizons program and a discussion on the role of anger in healing.

A lay training course will continue on Monday nights, under the leadership of Barbara Platt Hendren. This course comes out of the University of the South and is basically a Bible study course for those who wish to pursue a more intense study of the New and Old Testaments. There are a few openings in this course. Inquiries can be made by calling Christ Church.

Choir Begins Schedule

The choir program of Christ Church on Central Street, Andover will begin its fall schedule of rehearsals this week. Known for its choral music tradition, Christ Church offers a variety of outlets for anyone in the community who desires to sing music of the Anglican-Episcopal tradition.

The Parish Choir, comprised of men, women, boys and girls between the ages of eight through adult, rehearses on Thursdays. The children meet in the choir room in the parish hall building at 5 p.m. They rehearse from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. when they take a break for recreation and study. They eat dinner at 6:30 p.m. Adults and high school members of the choir, which comprise the alto, tenor and bass sections (although there are a few adult sopranos, the children make up the majority of this part) arrive at 7 p.m. and rehearse as a full choir until 8:30 p.m.

This choir was recently featured in an article in the Journal of Church Music, a national publication, and has attracted considerable attention because of its unique makeup.

Christ Church also offers a music readiness program for children in grades one through three. This group meets in the choir room on Thursdays between 4 p.m. and 4:45 p.m. Note reading, improvisation, basic composition and music skills are taught through an Orff-Schulwerk program. In addition, the children are given the experience of handbell ringing.

Christ Church also has a specialized choral organization, the Schola Cantorum, open to sight readers. They rehearse at 10:15 a.m. on Sundays. Reading singers interested in preparing music principally from the 16th to 18th century are welcome.

The music at Christ Church is under the direction of Earl L. Miller. Further information can be had by calling the church.

Parish Mission This Week

Rev. Frederick Collins, pastor of St. Robert Bellarmine Church in West Andover, reports his parish retreat committee and parishoners will participate in a parish-wide mission to begin Thursday, Sept. 13, at 7:30 p.m. and conclude Sunday, Sept. 16, at the Haggetts Pond Road church.

"We have not had such a renewal opportunity for some years now and we anticipate a large audience for our program," said Fr. Collins. "There is an excellent team of accomplished leaders coming to present 'Two by Two... Before Him,' a program that emphasizes active lay sharing in the Catholic Church in the modern world. The Second Vatican Council did not tamper with Catholic teaching, you know, but it did urge new participation by everyone in some very positive and exciting ways." Some of the topics to be addressed are "Vatican II—What Was it and What is it?," "The Spirituality of Lay People: God's Plan," "St Francis Prayer: How has God Worked Through me?," "Forgiveness and Inner Healing" and "Christian Witness and Vision: How Two by Two Works."

The visiting renewal team is led by Nina Lauzon, M.A. Biblical Studies, Providence College, who is director of "Word of God Ministry," sponsored by the Catholic parishes in Essex County.

The Adult Forum begins September 23. Pastor Kohl will teach an "Introduction to the Bible." The first session will look at how to buy a Bible, a brief overview of versions of scripture available today. The course will then explore various methods of biblical interpretation, types of literature in the Bible, tools for Bible study, an overview of Bible history, a survey of major biblical themes and a sampling of readings pertaining to those themes.

Church School To Resume

Church school classes for all ages begin this Sunday at the Ballard Vale United Church (United Methodist Church, United Church of Christ), 23 Clark Road, Andover. The following classes and study themes will be offered for the fall term: at 9:30 a.m., an adult discussion class, "The Letter to the Ephesians," a youth class (grades 9-12) "I am Who I am;" 10:30 a.m. infant/toddler nursery, kindergarten, "Living Together as God's People," elementary one and two, "Growing in God's Way," elementary three and four and five and six, "Responding to God's Call." There will be three youth fellowship groups meeting on Sunday evenings; junior highs meet at 5:30 p.m. and the ninth grade and senior high at 7 p.m.

There will be a new class for seventh and eighth graders on Wednesdays at 7 p.m. Their study theme will be "Myself as God's Person." United Methodist curriculum will be used in all groups.

St. Augustine's CCD Registering

St. Augustine's Religious Education Office is in the process of placing students in classes. Placement forms were mailed to all families registered in the program. Return the form to the office immediately so that the child can be assigned.

The Very Rev. John Brokenshire and his wife, Sheila, from Auckland, New Zealand, are in residence at St. Paul's Church, North Andover, for a three months' exchange ministry with St. Paul's rector, the Rev. Alexander S. Daley, who is now in Auckland.

There is a daily service of Holy Communion at 7 a.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, 10 a.m. Thursday and 8:30 a.m. Saturday; Evening Prayer daily at 5:30 p.m.

TWIGS Group Meets

TWIGS will welcome old and new members to its free coffee and meeting on Monday, Sept. 17, at 9:30 a.m. at South Church.

Today's Women in God's Service (TWIGS) is a women's circle of South Church whose purpose is to meet socially as Christian women to discuss family, children and women's issues, at home, with the church and throughout the community.

It is a fellowship and an opportunity for members to work together in a common goal toward spiritual enrichment and community outreach.

Women of all denominations are welcome and meet bi-weekly on Mondays from 9:30 a.m. to 11:15 a.m. Babysitting is available.

Volunteer Open House At Hospice

The Hospice Program of Greater Lawrence Home Health welcomes all interested people to the Hospice Volunteer Open House on Thursday, Sept. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room of Greater Lawrence Home Health, 451 Andover St., North Andover (across from Merrimack College). The open house will feature the film "Home Sweet Hospice" and a group discussion and general sharing from former Hospice volunteers on the role of the Hospice volunteer in the Hospice Care Team. This is an opportunity to find out what is involved in the training program and how the volunteer contributes to the general philosophy of Hospice care.

The number of families in need of volunteer services exceeds the number of available volunteers. The Hospice volunteer is an integral component to the philosophy of the Hospice movement. According to David Duncan, the coordinator of Hospice volunteers, "The Hospice patient and family does not receive the same level of support and care without the volunteer. As the Hospice Program is more widely understood, more families are requesting Hospice services."

For more information, or to arrange an interview, call Duncan. Any person who would like to participate in the ten-week training program starting October 2 (days and evenings) but is unable to attend the open house is encouraged to call at the earliest convenience. Messages may be left with the answer phone service after normal business hours.

Nursing

and Arcand, in part because of the independence that goes along with being out in the community, on your own.

In a hospital, explained McKernan, who initially got some medical surgical experience in a Lowell hospital, the bureaucracy is frustrating. And there is ingrained feeling, she said, that if one nurse doesn't get something done a nurse on the next shift will.

"As a home nurse you are the primary nurse in charge of care, she said. Bourbeau added that nurses do a lot more teaching when nursing at home, where, she said, patients seem to respond better medical care.

"It's amazing to see how people can function with an illness in their own home, said Bourbeau. "We get to work more with their needs in their home where they are in control and have a normal schedule with their families."

Arcand turned to home nursing after experiences in nursing in a number of different settings. For as long as she can remember, Joan Arcand has wanted to become a nurse. Her mother tells the story that as a second grader young Joan told her teacher that she would be a nurse. When asked why the fascination with what she has made her career, Arcand just smiles, shrugs her shoulders and throws up her hands.

Once a navy nurse and a Korean War veteran, Arcand had to give up navy nursing when she married a naval officer, navy rules. She has been a hospital nurse, a school nurse and a camp nurse but now she's sure she will stay with community health nursing.

"It's diversified," Arcand said. "You are independent."

Diane Bourbeau, who spends most of her time visiting people in Andover, works with the very old and the very young. She visits first-time mothers, many of whom are not married, who have no idea how to bathe, feed or diaper their new charges. Care of the mother after the birth of her child is also an important part of Bourbeau's visits to new mothers.

The Home Health and Nursing organization serves as a resource and referral for other medical groups, one of them which McKernan works with is the Massachusetts Center for Sudden Infant Death Syndrome. Not often talked of, sudden infant death, or crib death, claims 7,000 young children, from one month to one year old. McKernan works with the parents of children who have died in their cribs or car seats, for reasons medical experts do not fully understand.

In this area there have been six cases of sudden infant death since January, said nurse McKernan. She stays in touch with families who have experienced such a loss for about a year, said McKernan.

Another area in which the home health organization works is with those who need rehabilitative therapy. At one time a nurse did the occupational, physical and speech therapy. Now those areas have been taken over by specialists, over a dozen of whom work at Home Health. The case load is full for both the part and full-time workers, especially when schools are out for the summer and home health therapists are working with children who would usually receive such rehabilitation in school.

Not all those working at the Greater Lawrence Home Health and Nursing Services are nurses or therapists, said Mary White, who is in charge of public relations and marketing for the organization. There are home health aides who help with daily duties in the homes of those who need assistance. Many of these aides, most of whom are women, have used the homemaking skills they possess to start back to work, explained White.

Now a nurse can't be away from the

Cormier Allowed To Move Within Own Development

By Sue Aucella Deacon

Andover Country Club developer Yvon Cormier will be allowed to truck 10,000 cubic yards of earth material out of the country club development and into another of his subdivisions, now under construction off Bailey Road, with the Planning Board's approval.

Town Manager Kenneth Mahony Tuesday night told the board the Community Development and Planning staff favored letting Cormier take the material off the country club and over to Bailey Road for two reasons.

First, it would let the developer avoid excavating at the Bailey Road site to come up with material to use as fill; and second, the 200- to 300-foot high stockpile wouldn't be left sitting at the country club all winter.

The selectmen Monday night told Mahony they had no objections to that plan.

According to the manager, the hauling job could be completed within ten days and the fill would be used immediately — not stockpiled — at the Falcon Crest subdivision off Bailey Road in West Andover.

Mahony called the move "no big deal," and said it would not effect country club neighbors, who've complained of many problems with the sprawling development over the past few years.

Cormier will not truck the material along Canterbury and Lowell streets, but out a back section of the country club subdivision and onto River Road, he explained.

The planners voted unanimously to allow the gravel move.

They also indicated that stabilization of excavated areas in section four of the country club subdivision — the object of a planning board stop-work order early this summer — is going well: Mahony said that Cormier has been "very cooperative in the last few months."

Earlier Tuesday night, the board unanimously approved a special permit for earth removal and regrading at Riverside Park, a research and development office park proposed for a 32-acre site on River Road, next to the Greater Lawrence Regional Technical Vocational School.

The permit will allow the developer, McNeil and Associates of Westwood, to build a roadway for the office park and lay water and sewer lines this fall. The roadway will be an extension of a road now leading into the new Doyle lumber yard on River Road.

The developer will bring 945 cubic yards of topsoil onto the site, while about 1,145 cubic yards of soil excavated from the new roadway will be stockpiled in a 12- to 14-foot pile for three to four months.

The planners instructed McNeil and Associates to make sure the excavated areas and the stockpile are stabilized (with hay bales, rye grass or netting) to prevent soil erosion and blowing.

The developer expects to complete the roadway by next spring.

Selectmen Hike Fees

By Sue Aucella Deacon

Licenses issued by the Board of Selectmen for everything from running a restaurant to driving a taxi cab are going to be a bit more costly next year. The selectmen Monday night unanimously approved a new fee schedule that will double most of the current license fees.

While 13 license fees will be at least doubled as of Jan. 1, 1985, three other fees will see smaller increases, and four will remain the same.

Many of the increases recommended by Town Manager Kenneth Mahony will bring Andover's fees up to the limit allowed by state law — and the license-holders who'll feel the worst pinch are those who sell or serve alcoholic beverages.

The manager's schedule for increasing fees for alcoholic license fees, as approved by the selectmen, calls for bringing all of those fees up to the state-allowed maximum by 1987.

All-alcoholic inn-holders licenses now cost $1,500 in Andover. (There are four in town, including the Sheraton-Rolling Green, for example.) Next year that fee will be doubled to $3,000; in 1986 it will be increased to $4,500, and in 1987 it will reach $5,000, the state maximum.

All-alcoholic restaurant license fees for such establishments as Backstreet and the Andover Jade will also increase from the current $1,500 to $3,000, and to $5,000 in 1987. There are nine such license-holders in town.

Three clubs with all-alcoholic licenses, such as the Elks Lodge, will see their fees doubled from a current $750 to $1,500. That fee will be increased to $3,000 in 1986, and to $4,500 the following year. (The state maximum is $5,000.)

Fees for the four all-alcoholic package stores in town (Andover Liquors, for example) will increase from $1,500 to $2,000, the maximum allowed by the state. Wine and malt package license fees (there are two such licenses in Andover, Barron's and PJ's country stores) will increase from $750 to $1,500, also the state maximum; fees for the town's three wine and malt retail licenses (such as the Town Deli) will also rise from $750 to $1,500 and, in 1986, to the state maximum of $2,000.

The fee for an application to the selectmen for a change in a liquor license (a new manager or renovations to the premises, for instance) will increase from $25 to $75.

Other license fees that will at least double as of Jan. 1 include: common victuallers (food), from $25 to the state limit of $50 (there are currently 51 in Andover); lodging houses (two), from $20 to $50, the state maximum; auto dealers (four) from $50 to $100, the state maximum; auctioneers from Andover (currently, there are none), from $50 to $100; one-day auctioneers (currently none), from $35 to $75; precious metals dealer (two), from $50 to $100; and taxicab licenses (five), from $25 to $50.

Smaller increases are in store for bowling alley licenses, from $30 to $50 for the first alley, and $25 instead of $15 for each additional alley. (There are now 16 bowling alleys in town.)

Four license fees will remain the same: for automatic amusement devices such as video games or juke boxes (there are ten), $100; raffle licenses (seven), $50; junk licenses (one), $50; and application to the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC) for a change in a liquor license, $25.

The selectmen serve as the licensing board for Andover.

Seven Andover Residents Are Chosen Merit Semi-Finalists

By Susan Rand

Seven Andover residents have been honored as semi-finalists in the 1985 National Merit Scholarship competition, where they may be awarded college tuition scholarships ranging from $2,000 to full awards for four years of college study.

Andover High School seniors Jennifer F. Tilghman, Ross G. Shank, George P. Katsaros, Kurt E. Holmy, Myles D. Greenberg, Paul P. Belleisle and Phillips Academy senior John D. Winters were among the 15,000 nationwide winners. They were for the scores they received on the preliminary scholastic aptitude test (more commonly known as PSAT) that they took as high school juniors. This exam and the SAT test scores are one of the factors many colleges and universities look when making admissions decisions.

In order to win one of the many college scholarships given by the National Merit Corporation, the semi-finalists must attain high marks on the SAT exam, receive the endorsement of their school principals and send the competition officials a statement outlining their activities, interests and goals. Finalists will be announced in February 1985.

Andover High School Principal Mary

Athey Jennings said she was very pleased for the students and their families, adding that this year's semi-finalists are not only excellent students but are also contributors to school organizations and athletics.

The Andover students honored include Paul P. Belleisle, 17, who hopes to enter either Dartmouth College or the University of Pennsylvania to major in engineering. A member of junior high and high school gymnastic teams, Paul's favorite events are floor exercises and the vault. He spent the summer working at the Sheraton Rolling Green helping set up for conventions, a job he will continue with throughout the school year. Paul, 3 Whispering Pines Lane, is the son of Mary and Albert Belleisle.

Myles Greenberg, 9 Sheffield Circle, knows he doesn't want to be a teacher, thanks to the experience he's had teaching fifth grade science and computer classes at his uncle's New York City school during his Andover school vacations. Myles, who is 16, hopes to attend Princeton, Yale, or the University of Pennsylvania to study engineering as a first step on his way to medical school. He is spending his second year as a math league member at Andover High and is vice-president of Temple Emanuel's teenage youth group. The son of Melvyn Greenberg and Michelle Baum, Myles works selling cameras and computers at Comeau's, in New Hampshire.

He's not sure what he will be studying next year or where but Kurt E. Holmy, 12 Hemlock Road, is sure he wants to attend college. The 17 year-old scholar is on the staff of the high school yearbook, Kaliedoscope, and works after school at Infinet, where this summer he helped revise company manuals. This fall he is working on maintenance of Infinet's inventory. Kurt is the son of John and Carole Holmy.

One semi-finalist, a former Andover High School student has already enrolled in college. George P. Katsaros, 2 Paulonette Circle, is a first year student at the New School for Social Research, in New York City's Greenwich Village, where he is studying for both a bachelor and master's degree in a four-year accelerated program. George will end up with two degrees in philosophy, said his sister, Vicki. At the end of this year the former DeMoulas Market employee will also receive his diploma from Andover High. George, 17, is the son of Peter and Kathy Katsaros.

Ross G. Shank, 12 Longwood Drive, hopes to major in English in college and become a writer, according to his national merit application. He is a senior at Andover High School this year.

Hoping to study geology next year at Dartmouth College, Jennifer F. Tilghman, 4 Lovejoy Road, is spending a lot of her time in her last year at Andover High as one of the editors of the school's yearbook. She is also a member of the National Honor Society and works after school in the inter-library loan office at Memorial Hall Library. Jennifer, 17, is the daughter of Margo and Benjamin Tilghman.

John D. Winters Jr. is the only Andover resident at Phillips Academy to be named a semi-finalist. He is one of the school's 30 who were so honored. John is applying to a number of colleges and universities including Northwestern, Haverford, Oberlin, Wesleyan and Brandeis. He is vice-president of the school's chess club and a member of the Republican Club. When he isn't working at the Andover Country Club John might be spending time scouting as a member of the South Church Boy Scout Troop 73, where he has achieved the rank of "life scout." The 17 year-old senior is the son of John and Marcia Winters, 5 Sterling St.

To Take Another Look At Fireworks For The Fourth

By Sue Aucella Deacon

The citizens' committee that's revived a July 4th patriotic celebration in Andover in recent years has done a fine job, Selectman Gerald Silverman said this week — but some townspeople won't be happy until fireworks are returned to Andover.

If the people of Andover really want to see fireworks here again, they may have to shell out up to $7,000 for the privilege, the town manager said Monday night. The selectmen decided to take another look at the fireworks question when budget-making time rolls around.

Selectman Silverman told his colleagues he's heard "a lot of complaints this year" from residents who miss seeing fireworks in their hometown. Independence Day fireworks were last seen in Andover in 1982; since then, townspeople have been advised to visit neighboring towns like Lawrence and North Andover to get their annual fireworks fix.

Fireworks make July 4th "a much bigger day," Silverman said, and he suggested that the board "see what happens at budget time."

The town manager noted that up to '82, Andover budgeted a steady $3,000 for fireworks each year — and year by year, that amount funded a less and less impressive display. To "do it right," Mahony said, the town would have to budget $6,500 to $7,000.

Selectman Norma Gammon added that that would not include the cost of a police detail and other town employees needed to set off fireworks: the total could come to $10,000 or $11,000, she said. One solution, Silverman suggested, might be to solicit contributions from businesses and community organizations to help pay for the display.

Charles Wesson pointed out that fireworks were discontinued in large part because the town lost a sizeable lawsuit over damages caused by town fireworks. However, Mahony said that was a rare case that "will never happen again."

Chairman Donn Bryne asked the manager to gather comments from the police and fire departments, and find out the cost of insuring the town against potential liability, so the board would have "all the answers at once" during budget discussions.

The manager indicated that for safety reasons, fireworks would most likely be resumed at Lovely Field at Andover High School (where they were held in

Bus Warnings Back

Andover residents should sharpen their driving skills, especially now that school buses are again traveling the town's streets, according to members of the Andover School Committee.

Committeewoman Susan T. Poore suggested that the school board revive what she believed was a defunct procedure to warn motorists who pass school buses stopped to pick-up or drop-off youngsters that they are breaking the law. It used to be standard operating procedure, Poore said, that if a town resident observed an automobile passing a stopped school bus, and was quick enough to write down the vehicle's license plate number, the police department would send out a "warning" letter to the offender saying someone had seen them breaking the law.

Police Lieutenant Robert Parker told THE TOWNSMAN that the department still sends out the form letters. Officer Parker said he didn't think a lot of letters were sent for the violation that carries a fine of $100. He also said a complaint could be signed by anyone who observed a motorist passing a bus, adding that that is rarely done because people are usually afraid to get involved.

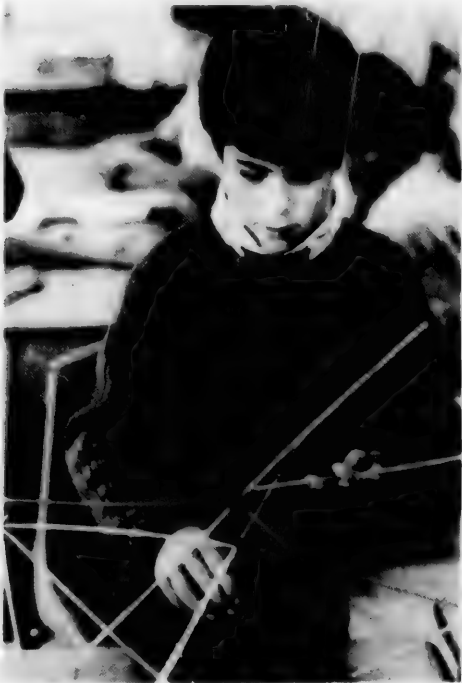

School board Chairman Donald W. Robb asked Francis L. Paul, school department business manager, to investigate the school bus law and what the police are doing about offenders.

"Whenever I see that I just cringe," Robb said of school bus passers, "because I know what might be."

Caron Funeral Home Plan Suffers Another Roadblock

By Susan Rand

Either way he still can't put a funeral home on Elm Street just yet because John Caron must withdraw his variance request pending before the Zoning Board of Appeals or they will turn him down, said Ernest Hall, acting chairman at the board meeting held last Thursday evening.

Warning that the board's decision was still tentative, Hall told THE TOWNSMAN that after a site visit on Saturday the board decided to give the North Andover funeral home director the option to withdraw his petition. Hall said that he will write the decision on the case, at which time the other five board members will decide whether or not to approve Caron's request for a variance.

The information Caron and his Andover attorney, Charles F. Dalton Jr., supplied at Thursday evening's hearing, where eight people supported Caron's bid and two spoke against him, "was not what we were looking for," said Hall.

But Dalton told THE TOWNSMAN that although he believed there was a good chance the board would deny the variance request, Caron probably wouldn't withdraw his petition. Dalton expected a decision from Caron by last evening, after THE TOWNSMAN'S deadline, he said.

"John's inclination is to see this through," said the attorney. "There's enough information for them to pass this if they want to. John's willing to accept his fate, whatever it may be."

If Caron is denied the variance town bylaws stipulate he may not request it again for two years. But if he withdraws his request, in official language, "without prejudice," he may resubmit the same request at the next board meeting if he so desires.

In order to operate a funeral home in the 42-44 Elm St. home, Caron must have a variance from the board because town zoning bylaws do not permit funeral homes in a Single Residence A district.

Supporting his case, Dalton argued that commercial encroachment of the land near the Elm Street apartment house has limited the amount of money Dennis Doherty, the owner of the Elm Street property, can charge for rent in his four apartments. But without a wealth of figures to support that claim Dalton and Caron were told by Hall and board member Maureen Franco that their arguments didn't stick.

Doherty, at the meeting to support Caron's plan, told the board his four apartments brought monthly rents of $495, $423 and two tenants paid $350. When asked about the size of the apartments Doherty first said two had two bedrooms and two had one bedroom, later he changed that to three one-bedroom apartments and one two-bedroom dwelling. Caron said he had an agreement to buy Doherty's property.

In answer to her questions Doherty told Franco he paid $1,300 a month in mortgage payments and just under $3,000 in taxes, financial burdens which, he said, make his property not a very good investment. But Franco challenged Doherty or Caron to prove that the apartment owner had tried to get higher rents from his tenants, information that would support Caron's claim that nearby businesses drove down the value of the property. That challenge went unanswered.

"We cannot grant a variance because Mr. Doherty doesn't take care of his property," said Franco, after a number of neighbors testified that the house and yard were in need of repairs. "He has not proven he's attempted to get more money. Those are base rents and he's not getting anything (utilities) with it," added Franco.

Hall told the petitioners he wanted a full accounting of what Doherty paid for the property, what his income is and what the mortgage is at Saturday's meeting on the site.

Also in support of his client, Dalton said that a 1978 court case reaffirmed his argument that the general business district, which begins three doors down from Doherty at the Gurry Agency, 28 Elm St., could be considered detrimental to the neighboring residential land. Dalton didn't have a copy of the case to give the board but said he would bring one by the zoning office the next day.

"When Mr. Doherty bought the property it had taken on a commercial flavor," Dalton argued. "The value of the building was reduced for residential use because of the flavor of the residential changes. He can't demand the kind of rents he could have."

"He could get $650 or $700 a month if the house was six or seven houses away from where it is, Caron added.

This isn't the first time Caron has tried to expand his business to Andover. He lost his case at Town Meeting to rezone the residential land to General Business. He did not receive the necessary majority needed for the zoning change. And Caron isn't alone in his wish to capitalize on the fact that Andover has only one funeral home. This past May, Paul Bekkenhuis, a funeral director from Reading, tried for a variance to operate a funeral business on land at 326 South Main St. He was denied the variance by the appeals board.

Andover's lone funeral home is the Burke Funeral Home, at 390 Main St.

Also sitting on the three hearings, besides Hall and Franco, were Roger Collins, Lorene Comeau, Elaine Katz and David Gravallese.

The two other hearings at last Thursday's meeting brought no comment from those in the audience and were tentatively approved by the board after their Saturday morning site visits, said Hall.

Bay Bank officials will be able to add a branch office in the Shattuck Office Center being built by Irving Wynn and S. Joseph Hoffman on River Road. Andover attorney, Carmen DiAdamo argued the bank's case to the board explaining that the proposed branch will have 1,000 square feet of the 63,000 square feet planned for the development.

The bank officers need a special permit to operate the bank in an Industrial D district, the town's most restrictive industrial zone.

Touted as a "convenience operation" for West Andover residents and those working in the River Road businesses, the branch office will attract mainly persons with access to its automatic teller machines, which will be located in a locked lobby that bank patrons will enter with special cards that unlock the door.

DiAdamo said the peak banking hours will not affect the commuter rush hour traffic on River Road.

"Most of the banking will be done between 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.," he said. "Not during the drive times for the industries. There are no minuses to this proposal."

Bank officers still need permission from the Comptroller of Currency, in New York, to construct the bank because they are a national bank.

Phillips Academy officials also had no opposition to their plan to add onto the private school's admission's building, on Salem Street. Because Hardy House is closer to Salem Street than Andover's zoning bylaws allow they must have a variance to build the addition, which would put the building 27 feet from the property line instead of the needed 40 feet.

Personnel

come on Oct. 15.

"When we are looking at the applications we will call the town and school to talk about them," Morse explained. "Commitment from both sides is important." But Morse said the state was willing to take a risk with their funds if support for a proposal was not unanimous.

Mahoney said he was "shocked to hear" there was any opposition from the School Committee, adding that the selectmen didn't discuss the grant proposal.

The town manager said that because the town has employees that account for spending of about $18 million dollars each year ($12 million on the school personnel and $6.5 million on the town side) a personnel manager was needed.

To garner support for their plan, both Seifert and Mahoney mentioned that a private company, spending comparable money, would as a matter of course have a personnel department. There are nine town employee unions and six in the schools that necessitate time spent on bargaining and contract maintenance, the town manager said.

At present personnel vacancies are handled by Mahoney's office and department heads, when there is a town job open; and by Seifert and Mavis Cox, a middle-level personnel office manager and a clerk in the school's personnel office for school jobs. When the school administration offices were renovated in the new town building, Mahoney said, an office was made to accommodate a personnel manager.

In addition to discussion about a position some town officials think the schools need, the School Committee was told that two administrators will be taking time off on unpaid leaves of absence, and one may not be returning.

For the first time ever, a school principal has requested a maternity leave. Mary Athey Jennings, principal at Andover High School, will leave her job on Nov. 19, Seifert said at the Tuesday meeting. She will be temporarily replaced by assistant principal Steven Richardson.

And pupil personnel administrator Pamela Kvilekval will take a year off, also without pay, beginning Oct. 10. She will spend her year in Italy, Seifert told the committee, "thinking about another career," he said, in management consulting. Seifert said he and Kvilekval will discuss a one-year replacement for her position, a matter which he said he would bring up at the next School Committee meeting.

Andover has also lost a number of teachers aides, who work in the town's schools with classroom teachers. Many of these former employees, the number of which Seifert did not supply to the committee, are skilled teachers with bachelor and in some cases master's degrees, he said, adding that replacements will be difficult to find. And in the last weeks before school Seifert said he was surprised by the number of teachers who decided to leave teaching for jobs in industry.

"I didn't think we would be hit as much as we were in the last month," the superintendent said on Tuesday night. "I noticed a significant change in personnel, an unusual number of resignations and people moving into industry. We are stuck in a classical personnel crunch."

For example, Seifert said, one teacher had been offered a position in industry paying three times her teaching salary. She took the job, he said.

After the meeting Seifert told THE TOWNSMAN that he wasn't sure raising the salaries of teachers would keep them in the profession. With many teachers colleges at universities being phased out, the superintendent predicted a reduction in the number of teachers, something which will effect not only Andover. It is, he said, something that happens about once each decade in teaching. And Seifert added that in a profession with few fringe benefits an unpaid leave of absence for a teacher or administrator was a plus.

"These people often come back revitalized which is an advantage to the student," Seifert said of the employees who takes time off.

New organization of the school's physical education and athletics programs brought about a personnel switch when a job as program advisor for physical education and athletics was split. Richard Swift, who once held the job, took over as program advisor for physical education and physical education teacher Richard Bourdelais assumed the position of athletics program advisor. Their salaries will be set when a contract is agreed

For Senate And Congress

Elections are no less important whether they be local, state or Presidential. Tuesday's primary, however, takes on a certain greater degree of import since the voters in the state and in this district will nominate party candidates for U.S. Senate and Fifth District Congressman.

The U.S. Senate seat is contested due to the decision of Sen. Paul Tsongas not to seek re-election, thus concluding a career of service which has been exemplary and of great assistance to this particular area.

Of the four candidates seeking the Democratic nomination, one stands out, based on already displayed leadership qualities.

Congressman James Shannon of Lawrence has served six terms in the House, during which time he has grown in stature and has gained the respect of his colleagues. While it could be expected that his service to this particular area would be of great benefit, Shannon's experience overall shows that he has prepared himself well for promotion to higher office and deserves the nomination on Tuesday.

The Republican race centers on a person who has a broad resume, showing service to the state and to the nation in the person of Elliot Richardson and the appeal of a self-made millionaire businessman with a conservative view, Ray Shammie.

While Richardson's resume is impressive, it would seem the state and nation would best be served by affording the opportunity to Ray Shammie.

In this case, where the difference is between experience and philosophy, we bow to the latter as being in the best interests of not only the senate race, but the future of the Republican party in Massachusetts, which is in dire need of new faces and thoughts.

The Fifth District Congressional race finds two state senators battling for the post left vacant by Cong. Shannon's decision to seek the senate seat.

Having had what one might consider a 'local person' serving the area, it is difficult to choose a replacement who will be from outside the immediate area.

Based on the presentations made by State Sens. Chester Atkins of Concord and Philip Shea of Lowell, as well as their records, we believe that Sen. Atkins deserves the Democratic nomination.

Serving on Beacon Hill is a difficult task at best, but Atkins has displayed the ability to work for his constituents on his own and gain leadership posts without sacrificing his individuality. This would serve him in good stead should he go on to an even more responsible position in Congress.

On the Republican side, Gregory Hyatt of Methuen clearly deserves the opportunity to campaign for the Congressional seat in the November election. While this is his first attempt at seeking public office, Hyatt has displayed a leadership talent in successfully promoting to the electorate Proposition 2½ in this state. He deserves the opportunity to carry his campaign further.

Public Forum

Beware!

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

"Let the Buyer Beware!" The Andover Department of Community Services this all offers 41 truly wonderful pages of special trips, cultural arts, academic and business courses and workshops which I applaud and enjoy. But one tiny special event jars my mind. Perhaps the program administration people in Andover really had not understood the trouble-making play in Boston, "Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All To Us."

Local anti-defamation league of B'nai B'rith in Washington, D.C., and elsewhere have opposed this anti-Catholic play. The National Conference of Christians and Jews protested in many places, including Connecticut. Tax-support colleges in California all the way on to Maine (USM) canceled these shows.

If nothing else, a consumer has the right to know that "Sister Mary Ignatius" etc. is not a religious play, nor an honest way to depict modern Catholic problems. A Catholic who hasn't kept up on the Judeo-Christian dismay would be in for a shock to pay $21 to take an Andover bus theater trip.

Nationally, even non-Catholics in many states know that this show undermines true ecumenical work. The ADCS calls it "biting and witty." I would not think it witty to make fun of a rabbi's faith or a scathing play on the faith of Lutherans. I'm afraid the ADCS blew it offering "an evening of fun and laughter" ridiculing the faith of Catholics in the '80s.

Down The Years With The Townsman

75 Years Ago — September 1909

The clause in the license of the bowling alleys which forbids any minor from the use of the alleys unless accompanied by a written permission from his parent or guardian will from now on be enforced.

It is some months yet before the Town election is to be held, but already it is pretty clearly defined just what ground the Superintendent of Streets will take to justify the condition of the streets. Already he and his henchmen are starting the cry that they have no money with which to work, and that this is the only reason why the streets are not in better repair.

After a vacation of two years, Miss Clara R. Boynton left Andover on Wednesday, for Nashville, Tenn., to take up her duties at Fisk University as matron of Livingston Hall. She has held the position for eight years previous to her vacation.

Our local piper, James Ramsey of Shawsheen Road, was to take part with the Piper's Band at the Clan's picnic at Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, Labor Day. Many other Andover Scots intended to join the picnickers.

50 Years Ago — September 1934

The possibility of a change in the curriculum of our public schools was foreshadowed Tuesday evening when in their first committee meeting of the present year the board discussed dumping some of the more cultural subjects and substituting such courses as typing and book-keeping. Dr. Nathaniel Stowers felt that Spanish in particular could well be dropped, and he added that he felt that German and French might also be of doubtful value.

The planning board has completed its draft of the proposed zoning bylaw which will be acted upon at a special town meeting to be held in the near future. The by-law would divide the town into four types of districts: single residence, educational, business and industrial. The by-law regulates the use, construction, repair, alteration, height, location and area of buildings and structures and the use of premises in Andover.

A petition asking expansion of the playground area at the playstead was sent to the board of public works this week by a group of 442 "Playground Young People and Their Friends." The expansion would be used for eight paddle tennis courts.

25 Years Ago — September 1959

The Boston and Maine Railroad has put off remedial construction at the Essex st. crossing "until sufficient labor forces become available." Town Manager Thomas E. Duff, expressing some doubt as to what that statement means, suggested this week that the railroad should pave and otherwise repair the crossing to avert serious consequences to motorists.

Thirty-two new teachers will confront youngsters in the public schools Sept. 9 — 11 of them occupying posts that did not exist last year and the remainder entering the system as replacements. The average age of the new high school teachers is 30.5, with an average of 3.7 years of experience. The average salary in this group will be approximately $4,700.

Three public hearings are scheduled tonight by the Appeals Board, which meets in the hearing room at the second floor of the town hall. The following requests for variances will be heard: James Cunningham, seeking less than the allowed frontage on a house lot on Shawsheen rd.; Westpost Realty Trust, variance to allow a sub-division on School st.; and Benjamin Dargoonian, sub-divide

Heart Feelings

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

As a fairly new resident to Andover, I have enjoyed the benefits of a clean, community-oriented, picturesque New England town. However, these are still the surface feeling one has in becoming acquainted to a new area and not the "heart" feelings of what a town is really about.

On July 22, 1984, I was swimming at Pomp's Pond with my family when a young man nearly lost his life.

Within moments of his cry for help, as he sank into the dark waters of the pond, a crew of well-trained lifeguards sprang into action. Because of their perseverance, training and ability to act in an emergency, a man's life was saved. To see a situation in which you are helpless and can only pray that those in charge will succeed is tense, to say the very least.

Not once did this team of lifesavers give up their attempts to rescue the drowning man. Repeatedly, they dove down into the murky waters, only to come up empty-handed. At last, he was pulled unconscious from the water, whereupon another battle was fought. Again, training and perseverance won out and through mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and life-saving techniques, the man regained consciousness.

I was impressed beyond words with what could have been a tragedy and turned out to be a miracle. I am proud of those who worked so hard to save another human being and wish to

Warrior Gridders Begin Quest For Title

Warrior gridders get in shape with a little running during practice session.

By Rick Harrison

The 1984 Andover High varsity football team begins its quest for the Merrimack Valley Conference championship, something that has eluded the Golden Warriors for approximately a decade, this Saturday afternoon when Lowell High invades Lovely Field for a 1:30 p.m. contest.

AHS will unveil a team that is almost totally inexperienced at the varsity level, with the entire offensive unit and nine of 11 defensive starters newcomers.

However, Head Coach Dick Collins' squad will also be coming off an impressive final pre-season scrimmage performance against Wellesley High, having defeated the Bay State League member 21-0 last Saturday in Wellesley after a somewhat lackluster performance in a previous outing against North Andover.

"We were 100 percent improved over the North Andover scrimmage," stated Collins, who then tempered the observation by adding that "although I don't think Wellesley is going to be a particularly strong team."

"We moved the ball very well at times, and the most encouraging thing was the way we stiffened up on defense. We made excellent strides in that department, but again it's hard to judge the overall improvement because we're not sure how Wellesley measures up (to the teams in the MVC).

"Both (Tim) Perry and (Shane) Smith looked good at quarterback," continued Collins, who faces a pleasant dilemma as to which one to start Saturday. "Both threw a touchdown pass, and the other score came on a short plunge."

For the record, junior wide receiver Kevin Rourke and senior tight end Keith Driscoll were on the money end of the TD aerials while senior Co-Capt. John Barry netted the six-pointer on the ground.

"The blocking in the offensive backfield (a major concern against North Andover) was also superior," related Collins, "and a lot of that is because Mark Polakow was back for this scrimmage. He and Barry are both strong blockers."

"All four kids in the defensive secondary played well (after some lapses with people shuffling in and out against NA), as did Smith and Driscoll at defensive end."

The secondary quartet referred to includes Perry (safety), junior John Nuzzo (cornerback), junior Rob DiTroia (cornerback) and promising sophomore Steve Redgate (cornerback) who may be a two-way starter against Lowell.

Babe Ruth Tryouts Scheduled

The Andover Blue and Gold Babe Ruth baseball teams will hold their annual fall tryouts Sunday, Sept. 16, and Sunday, Sept. 23, at the Doherty Junior High School field.

Both practices will run from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. with all 13-year-old candidates asked to report at 1 p.m. and 14 and 15-year-olds at 2:30 p.m.

All Andover youngsters who will not turn 16 prior to August 1, 1985, are eligible. All 15 positions on both teams (there are 30 spots overall) are open with returning players having to earn their way back on the squads. Both the Blue and Gold teams have definite openings in the 15-year-old bracket because former players have moved out of town.

Andover Gold won its third Greater Lawrence League championship in four years this past summer (17-4 overall) and a combination of Blue and Gold players also captured the championship of the Waltham Invitational Tournament (14-year-old division) as well as reaching the semifinals in the Chelmsford Elks (14-15 year olds), Winthrop Invitational (14-year-old) and Waltham (13-year-old) tournies (11-6 overall record).

All candidates should bring both spikes and gloves to the tryouts. For further information, call Rick Harrison at 475-2007.

"Smith was a backup defensive end last year and saw quite a bit of time there," explained Collins. "The position certainly isn't new to Shane, and he's a tough kid who'll play anywhere we ask him to play."

"We felt we had to move Smith and Driscoll in as starters at defensive end to get more size at linebacker," added the veteran coach. "We'll have (John) Barry and Steve Duncan in at linebacker."

Lowell

The brief series between Andover (7-2-1 last year) and Lowell (6-3-1) stands 3-1-0 in the Red Raiders' favor, with Andover posting its first victory over Coach Walter Nelson's crew last fall.

The opening game in 1980 was a 6-0 victory for Lowell at Lovely Field, a heartbreaking loss for Andover because the Raiders notched the lone touchdown on a broken play (a running back scooped up a fumbled pitchout and raced 65 yards to paydirt on the final play of the game).

The following year, under the lights at Cawley Stadium in Lowell, the rivals staged one of the Warriors' most memorable contests. Lowell pulled out a thrilling 22-21 cliffhanger triumph, basically on a spectacular individual effort by halfback James Cooper.

Andover staged a dramatic late-game rally to almost pull it out, but Lowell stopped a two-point conversion attempt in the closing minutes to preserve the narrow victory.

The 1982 contest was one Collins and staff would just as soon forget, Lowell rolling to a shutout win and limiting the Golden Warriors to one first down and minus yards rushing.

Last year AHS broke the jinx, however, as Ralph Dellatto, Mark Grams and Bob Stabile provided the offense and strong defensive efforts were contributed by Bill Donovan, Mike Gibson, Ian Dowe and a host of others.

"We'll spend most of this week trying to determine what offense Walter will use," offered Collins. "In the past he's shown us two different looks, and we'll have to prepare for both."

"Another major concern is what to do about (James) Slattery (No. 89)," continued Collins. "He's a great football player."

The Red Raiders' 6'2", 215-pound senior captain, a two-way terror at tight end and linebacker-defensive end, was a two-way All-Conference selection last fall. He is the nucleus, the catalyst and the heart of the Lowell team, an emotional player with the ability to turn a game around by himself.

"I spent all afternoon last Sunday thinking about how to cope with a player of that caliber. I even gave consideration to a shotgun — the kind that uses bullets," noted Collins with a laugh.

However, aside from Slattery, Lowell is also a basically inexperienced team whose coaching staff probably won't know until gametime just how the players will react to varsity competition.

"I could've picked a more suitable opening opponent than Lowell," commented Collins. "It's a tough team to start with, especially with all our young kids, but we have to take them as they come."

Starting Lineup

The Golden Warriors should be healthy for the opener, having been minus only junior lineman Larry Aiello (strepped throat) in the Wellesley scrimmage.

"We had a couple other kids slowed by minor muscle strains, but everyone played except Aiello," noted Collins. "We should have Larry back for Lowell."

As of mid-week Collins and staff were still undecided about several starting positions, with two players battling it out for the No. 1 spot in each case.

The tentative starting lineup on offense has Kevin Rourke (5-9, 145 lbs.) at left end, Joe Dadiago (6-2, 205) at left tackle, either Larry Aiello (5-10, 175) or sophomore Joe Jarek (5-10, 175) at left guard, junior Bob Manning (6-1, 195) at center, either Phil Starks (6-1, 195) or Austin Henderson (5-8, 165) at right guard, Co-Capt. Brian McAnally (5-11, 180) at right tackle and Keith Driscoll (6-4, 190) at right end.

Either Shane Smith (6-0, 180) or Tim Perry (6-1, 165) will open at quarterback, with Perry possibly seeing some action as a setback.

The halfbacks should be Steve Redgate (5-8, 150) and John Barry (5-10, 180), with Mark Polakow (5-9, 170) at fullback.

On defense Smith and Driscoll will start at end, Starks and McAnally at tackle and Polakow at middle guard.

Steve Duncan (5-8, 150) and John Barry will open at linebacker, with either Henderson or senior Brian Finnerty (5-8, 155) in the other spot.

The three deep backs will be chosen from among Perry, John Nuzzo (5-7, 150), Redgate and Rob DiTroia (5-8, 145).

Senior Craig Hammond will handle all the placekicking (conversions, fieldgoals, kickoffs), with Perry expected to do the punting.

Topsfield Fair

The closing date for entries in the Topsfield Fair Professional Art Show has been extended from September 5 to September 17 and the receiving dates will be September 15 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., September 16 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. and September 22 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. All entries should be taken to Coolidge Hall, the Family Living Center.

The annual poultry show has been cancelled because the state has banned all fair poultry shows due to a poultry virus.

"I'll make my usual prediction about the league," related Collins. "Six or seven different teams have a shot at the title, and I'll be very, very surprised if anyone goes undefeated."

The Warriors could take the first of 10 steps towards surprising Collins with a victory on Saturday.

Varsity Soccer Warms Up

By She Livermore

Varsity soccer has had a very tough but rewarding pre-season. Apart from the usual strenuous workouts, the team competed in four scrimmages against strong teams and was victorious in all of them.

At home, the team defeated Saugus 1-0 and Medford 2-0.

In Wakefield for the annual Labor Day encounter, Andover prevailed 2-1 and upended Lynn English, last year's Division 2 North Champions, in their final scrimmage 3-1.

The team's only loss was at the hands of the illustrious alumni who squeaked out a 2-1 victory in the first annual Alumni vs. Varsity soccer contest.

Commenting on his team's pre-season successes, Coach Dave Amundsen stated, "Most of this year's opponents were selected because of their strong finish last year in their equally strong leagues. Looking at the results, it appears as though we have recovered from graduation better than any of our pre-season opponents."

"The team still has some weaknesses to work on, but should improve as the season progresses," Amundsen concluded.

Several of last year's starters were lost to graduation, including Zack Apgar (University of New Hampshire), Tri-Captain Hai Dang (University of Lowell), Tri-Captain Jim Denoncourt (Merrimack College), Steve McDowell (University of Maine), Mark Perowski (Fitchburg State), Brian Sheehy (University of Massachusetts) and Peter Surrence (University of Florida).

Juniors David Bartle, goalkeeper, Barry Tucker, right wing, and Scott Wilkins, center forward and midfield, also returned from last year.

Joining the varsity from last year's successful J.V. team are senior Rich Boucher, forward, and juniors Bruce Crawford, left defender, Paul McAdam, forward, and Bob Pothier, goalkeeper and midfield.

Other newcomers, up from junior high teams, include sophomores Geoff Boland, defender, Brian Cronin, goalkeeper, David Doyle, forward, Mike Hardock, forward, and Chris Sapuppo, midfield.

Rounding out the 1984 Andover High varsity soccer team is newcomer junior Fred Whitten, defender.

The team looks very good and, if it lives up to its potential, should better its record of last year when it finished in third place in the Merrimack Valley Conference behind Billerica and Methuen. Andover captured the M.V.C. title in 1980, 1981 and 1982.

Apples

The apple has been known since Biblical times but had its American debut in Massachusetts. John Winthrop, First Governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, imported apples from England in 1629 and another Massachusetts governor, John Endicott, planted the first nursery of young fruit trees at Danvers.

McIntosh and Macoun are crisp, juicy and great eating apples. Cortland are good for pies, baking and salads as they don't turn brown after slicing. Rome are good bakers and Red and Golden Delicious are fine for eating and excellent all-purpose apples.

A medium-size apple contains only 70 calories. Every school child knows an apple is "Nature's toothbrush." It reduces the chances of dental caries by cleansing the teeth and massaging the gums.

To store apples, keep them refrigerated in a plastic bag or in the crisper drawer.

On The Soccer Fields

By She Livermore

The Andover Soccer Association's 1984 Fall Program got underway last weekend with teams in the In-Town League holding practice sessions and those in the Northern Middlesex League playing their first games of the season.

Brief results of the Northern Middlesex League games appear below:

Andover Attackers 1 - Nashua S.C.

Nashua scored two quick goals in the first half to take a 2-0 lead. Midway through the second half, Andy Lascher beat the keeper to the ball, blasted it into the net and put Andover on the scoreboard. Nashua came back with one more in the closing moments of play, to win 3-1. BOW: Raj Sheel, Matt Young and Sung Jin Park.

Andover Raiders 1 - Billerica S.C.

The first half was scoreless. Midway through the second half, Ryan O'Leary passed the ball forward to A.J. Boutin who made a fine shot on net to put Andover ahead 1-0. Billerica pressed looking for the equalizer but the defense stood firm and goalkeeper Chris Adams blocked all shots on his net to give the Raiders the victory points. BOW: Ed Pothier and Scott Clementi for some great marking.

Andover Strikers 4 - Wakefield S.C. 0

Minak Sheel put the Strikers ahead when she scored in the first half on a pass from Pauline Koh. Koh made it 2-0 early in the second half with the assist going to Shaleen Cassily. Sheel scored her second goal direct and Heather Pomeroy completed the scoring to give the Strikers a 4-0 victory. BOW: Joan Asgierrson, Dainia Gammon and Kathleen Radulski.

Andover Cobras 1 - North Andover

Sorcerers 3

North Andover went ahead when they completed a penalty shot (hands) with three minutes left in the first half. Early in the second half they upped their lead to 2-0. The Cobras' forward line pressed and Jodi Saunders put the team on the scoreboard when she kicked in the ball on passes from Brenna Cronin and Suzanne Gianelly. Late in the game North Andover penetrated the defense for one more successful shot on net to give them a 3-1 victory. BOW: Elizabeth Hanson, Bridget Murphy and Erin Lynch.

Andover Cyclones 5 - Billerica S.C. 1

The Cyclones pressed their advantage throughout the lopsided contest, going ahead 2-0 in the first half with goals by Amy Habeeb and Lisa Allen; Laura Hammer assisted Habeeb. In the second half the spirited Cyclones added three more to their total, kicked in by Maura Eveett, Jessica Drobek and Bridget Guerrero; Darlene Prochniak, Laura Koerckel and Habeeb assisted. The competition denied the shutout midway through the contest and the Cyclones won 5-1. BOW: Jennifer Butt and Patty Murphy.

Andover Lightning 4 - Wakefield S.C.

The Lightning went ahead in the first half when Colin Nix made a fine shot on net on a pass from Brad Cronin. Mike Costello found the range early in the second half to make it 2-0. Wakefield narrowed their edge when they penetrated the defense and scored. Andover responded with another kicked in by Peter Arthur and made it 4-1 when Henry scored direct. BOW: Philip Meckel as well as Ryan Beal and Kevin Smith for some great goaltending.

William Howard Taft is the only man ever to have been both Chief Justice and President of the U.S.

Andover Skaters Win Medals

The warm weather hasn't kept three Andover figure skaters from working at their sport, and even bringing home some competition medals to show for their efforts.

Lindsay McCracken, Allison Newton and Julie Palmquist, skaters with the Wilmington Figure Skating Club, in Wilmington, competed in the Colonial Open, in Acton; the Massachusetts Inter-Club competition, held in Wilmington, and competitions in Cohasset, Lake Placid, N. Y. and on Long Island.

Palmquist brought home a gold medal in the juvenile figure competition and a silver in the preliminary freestyle from Long Island, where McCracken won the silver in the juvenile freestyle and a bronze in the juvenile figures.

Newton traveled to skate in the Cohasset Open, a competition in Lake Placid, N.Y., and also participated in the Smithfield Figure Skating Club's competition held in Rhode Island. Newton also passed her second figure test and her juvenile freestyle exam.

At the Colonial Open McCracken took a gold medal in the juvenile figures and Palmquist skated in the preliminary freestyle competition.

To do exactly the opposite is also a form of imitation.

Town Manager J. Maynard Austin Tuesday night was reappointed to a three-year term in the town's top administrative position by a unanimous vote of the selectmen, meeting in special session. The reappointment marked the first time since the beginning of town manager form of government in Andover that an incumbent was continued in office.

The Andover School Committee voted Tuesday night to appoint Terrance Holmes, junior high principal in the strike-worn Timberlane School District, New Hampshire, as assistant principal at Andover High. Chairman Francis Griggs broke the deadlock that occurred at the last session over salary, siding with Committeemen John Lyons and John Wragg in favor of $19,200 to start, plus the increase being negotiated by the Andover Education Association.

Real estate taxes have been placed in the mail and should be reaching all Andover property owners by today, according to Collector-Treasurer Myron H. Muese. The bills are the first to be on the two-payment system, with the first payment due by Nov. 1, the second by May 1. The bills reflect a $1 decrease in real estate taxes this year.

Raytheon Hearing Postponed

A hearing to determine if managers at Raytheon, Lowell Street, have been interfering with the unionizing efforts of the white collar workers there has been postponed until Thursday, Sept. 20, and Friday, Sept. 21.

The hearing was scheduled to take place at a National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) office, in Boston, on Aug. 27. The NLRB found enough merit with charges from made by the union to investigate the management practices there.

Jeff Charney, a public relations officer at Raytheon who works out of the Lexington office, told THE TOWNSMAN that Raytheon requested the change of the meeting date due to a "conflict in schedules."

The International Union of Electronic, Electrical, Technical, Salaried and Machine Workers (IUE), a division of the AFL-CIO, have been trying to organize middle managers at Raytheon since last April. IUE officials charged that Raytheon was trying to stymie their efforts at organizing at the Missile Systems Division plant.

Physical Planner To Enforce Laws

Unofficially, he's already known as "the enforcer" — at least, that's what the town manager calls him.

Officially, however, Stephen Colyer of Williamsport, Pa., will have the somewhat less intimidating title of physical planner for the Community Development and Planning department.

Colyer will join the department to fill that new position on Sept. 24, Town Manager Kenneth Mahony told the Planning Board Tuesday night. According to the manager, Colyer will be responsible for overseeing work on subdivision sites and earth removal projects.

His role will include both making recommendations to town boards like the planners, and seeing that the board's decisions are carried out.

Mahony said such direct on-site supervision should help the town avoid problems like those at the Andover Country Club this summer, when the developer violated the terms of his subdivision approval — and was forced to stop work when the planners learned of that violation.

"Everyone is concerned about enforcement," the manager said yesterday. "You can have the best planning board intentions, but if it isn't followed through it isn't going to mean much."

Colyer will join principal planner Nancy Jeton on the community development and planning staff. Jeton is in charge of overall planning and works closely with the planners in setting policy and approving subdivision proposals.

According to the manager, Colyer's hiring will have no direct impact on the position of community development director, vacant since Jonathan Gilmore resigned this summer. Mahony said he has no plans to hire a new director in the "immediate future."

Fireworks

1982), rather than at their traditional location, the playstead behind Doherty Junior High.

Selectman William Dalton remained skeptical about the true demand for fireworks in Andover. The selectman said he believes the town's fireworks played to more out-of-towners than Andover residents in recent years, and asked what was wrong with sending townspeople to other communities to see fireworks.

Town Clerk Elden Salter offered his own idea, a joint Andover-North Andover-Lawrence display: By pooling their funds, the three towns could afford one spectacular "big boom," Salter said.

Dalton said that would be fine with him — adding, "Let's do it in North Andover."

Good things, when short, are twice as good.

Samaritans Seeking New Volunteers

The Samaritans are interviewing men and women for a training course starting September 26. Twenty new volunteers are needed to man the emergency telephone lines at The Samaritans' new center at 55 Jackson St., Lawrence.

For more information, call the Samaritans.

More than 200 people have given time to The Samaritans' 24-hour befriending service since it opened in 1981. Calls have increased to nearly 90 a day on the five telephone lines—three Lawrence lines and one toll-free line each to Lowell and Haverhill. Although The Samaritans are primarily for those in danger of suicide, volunteers listen to anyone of any age who needs someone to talk to.

The Samaritans is a member of the Merrimack Valley United Fund. The service is free and confidential.

For Those Of Us Who Are Older

By Janet D. Lake

Although registration started yesterday, it is still not too late to register for many of the courses to be given at the senior center this fall. Why not look over the list and stop by to sign up? Surely there is something you would like to learn.

Have you bought your tickets for British Fling yet? The date is September 22; the place, the senior center, and with a roast beef dinner and Clan McPherson, you'll have a super time. Festivities begin at 5:30 p.m. Do join us.

Tomorrow, Friday, Sept. 14, is the closing date for the cheese distribution. If you haven't signed up by 4 p.m. tomorrow, you will not be eligible to receive the free cheese this time. Distribution field for more than a year and not miss a new technique, said Arcand. She and Woodbury remember well the days of rubber sheets, before plastics were invented, and glass tubing, along with the sterilizing, and they recall calculating out doses of morphine which now comes packaged in single unit doses.

Still, just like in the 1940's, if you call the Greater Lawrence Home Health and Nursing Service the person you will learn about home care from is Helen Woodbury. She spends her days explaining the home health options available when persons are referred to Home Health by hospitals, physicians, family members or other health agencies.

Speaking of how important Woodbury is to the organization, Arcand said "today's nurse knows who to refer people to," said Arcand. "And she knows how to get patients' services."

The Florence Nightengale nurse is a vision of the past. Community health nurses have evolved from the bedside nurse, someone who takes care of a body in a bed, said Arcand, to "a nurse who deals with the whole person." There is the mental well-being of a patient, now referred to as a client, to consider. Nurses may help find proper housing or they might find themselves counseling those with family problems—today all of this is considered the domain of a nursing home visit.

date is September 26 from noon to 4 p.m.

Have you ever been to the nationally famous Eastern States Exposition? We are sending a busload of people from Andover on September 19, leaving about 8:30 a.m. and returning about 6 p.m., and all for $11. Anything you choose to spend at the fair is extra, but the $11 includes transportation and admission fee. There are only a handful of seats left, so make the decision today and scurry on down to sign up.

Saturday, Sept. 29, for $22 you can enjoy an Oktoberfest at Crotched Mountain. You'll have a fun-filled day with great food and delightful entertainment. King Ludwig's Bavarian Band will be there and you can take a horse-drawn hayride and the chairlift up Mt. Monadnock. But, you have to sign up now.

You ought to mark your calendar for Tuesday, Sept. 25, for a special slide presentation by Ruth Sharpe, Ballardvale librarian. The program starts at 12:45 p.m. and will trace the history and development of Ballardvale and the influence of the Marland family on the area. This is a great opportunity to learn more about your town and to reminisce, too.

Need a ride to get where you're going? Have you tried the Weebus? The day before you want to be somewhere you call 475-4310 and make arrangements to be picked up, taken to any place in the general area and then picked up later to be taken back home. If the destination is within Andover it will cost 35¢ each way and $1.25 each way anywhere in Methuen, North Andover or Lawrence. Try it! It may be the solution to your transportation problems.

Don't forget the rummage sale October 13.

To present the beneficiary

The Massachusetts Audubon Society will offer a slide program on Misery Island, an 87-acre island off the coastline of Beverly, Salem and Marblehead, on Friday, Sept. 14, at 8 p.m. at the Endicott Regional Center, 346 Grapevine Road, Wenham.

The island is owned and managed by the Trustees of Reservations. For more information, call or write Endicott Regional Center, 346 Grapevine Road, Wenham 01984.

Quality Assurance

By the end of the decade, cars will be reshaped by advanced aerodynamic principles.

But you don't have to wait.

From Audi's German engineers: the 5000S sedan.

While the sleek, aerodynamic designs of other car makers are still in early prototype stages, this stunning luxury sedan from Audi's German engineers is in production and available now.

The Most Aerodynamic Luxury Sedan America Has Ever Driven. Refined in European wind tunnels, the Audi 5000S slices through air with an ease and agility that are outstanding for a luxury sedan.

So "air slippery" is the design, that tracking and directional control are maintained even in severe crosswinds. Acceleration to 50 mph is accomplished in 8.0 exhilarating seconds. Handling and cornering are close to what you would expect from exotic sports cars—the result of advanced front-wheel drive technology and a performance-tuned suspension.

Inside the sumptuous interior an almost eerie quiet prevails. Gracefully curved windows mounted flush with the roofline all but eliminate wind noise.

Superior Quality Backed By A Superior Warranty. To insure the quality of the 5000S, we tested it over 3.2 million kilometers in Europe, Africa and North America. So dependable is this automobile, we've covered it with an outstanding 24-month/limited warranty with unlimited mileage. See your dealer for details and a test drive.

both agreed that the primary races for both Paul Tsongas' senate seat and the Fifth District Congressional race to fill the seat that will be vacated by James Shannon, who is in the running for Tsongas' job, may have brought out residents to register.

On the Democratic ticket for the senate there are four hopefuls looking to face the winner of the two-man Republican race. David M. Bartley, Michael Joseph Connolly, John F. Kerry and James M. Shannon all want to run against either Elliot L. Richardson or Raymond Shamie, the Republicans in the senate race.

Fighting for Shannon's congressional post are Republicans Gregory S. Hyatt and Thomas P. Tierney. The Democrats in the congressional battle are Chester G. Atkins and Philip L. Shea.

Two Andover women appear on the ballots, both running for the Seventeenth Essex District seat in the Massachusetts General Court. But the face-off won't come until the presidential election when Republican Susan T. Poore, 85 Osgood St., will be pitted against incumbent Susan C. Tucker, 6 Farrwood Drive.

The only race that differs on the town's ballots is the state senate election, which for Andover Democrats in precincts one through five features incumbent Patricia McGovern against William X. Wall, a long-time senator for the Second Essex and Middlesex District. There isn't a Republican candidate in that contest. In the First Essex and Middlesex race Republican incumbent Robert C. Buell is being challenged by Democrat William B. Squillace.

Fighting for re-election to the Governor's Council from the Fifth District is incumbent John F. Markey, a Democrat, who faces J. Leo McCarthy, also a Democrat. The Republican party doesn't have a candidate for that post.

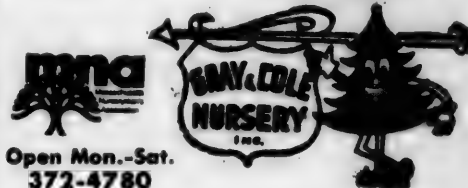

The Republican ballot also shows no candidates for the Register of Probate in Essex county. On the Democratic ballot John F. Burke will compete against Timothy P. Driscoll for the position Burke now holds.

The Essex County Commissioners race includes only one Republican, Everett C. Hudson, and Democrats Katherine M. Donovan, the only incumbent; Terrence M. Breen, J. Christopher Callahan, Louis A. Cersosimo, Donald B. Cook, Frank A. Costanzo, William A. Deveau, John F. McCarthy Jr., Jean Joseph Michaud and John V. O'Brien.

Katherine F. O'Leary is the only candidate for the position she now holds, that of Essex County treasurer.

The last day to register for November's presidential election is Tuesday, Oct. 9, when the Town Clerk's office will be open until 10 p.m. There will be a special Saturday registration on Sept. 29, from 12 noon until 8 p.m.

BIG NUMBERS

Recent census figures tell the story of home purchases: mortgage debt on one-family homes rose 215 percent during the 1970s, to $678 billion. Two trends contribute to that rise: more people are buying, and they are spending more.

Every home purchase is also a home SALE. Most often it's previously owned; these far outnumber new purchases. Behind each sale is a family that's decided to move on - to another street, town, or state.

We don't have statistics to prove this, but we'll bet the smoothest, most successful sales were arranged by real estate professionals. Those are the no-hassle transactions that leave the family the time and energy they need to find a new home and move in.

Truth is, selling a house is hard, even for the experts. It takes research to price the property, know-how to advertise and show it, patience to qualify prospects, tact to negotiate price.

Take advantage of our experience. When you're ready to sell your property, list with the experts to —

THE BEST HOUSE FOR YOUR MONEY

In finding a house that's right for you and your family, you'll want the best house for your money. You'll also want to consider how stretchable your budget may be, based on your current job status as well as your future prospects. For example, if you are thinking of buying a house in the $80,000 range, is it worth your while to stretch that to $100,000 in order to buy a house that will be a better investment?

Whether you're a one-income or a two-income family will make a difference as will the percentage of your monthly income that you are willing to put into home costs. If your job prospects include expected yearly pay increases, this percentage would decrease each year.

At the same time, you can expect the value of your home to appreciate in value. Whatever your financial circumstances, discuss the situation with your Realtor. It pays to be financially frank with your Realtor.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at THE HOWE AGENCY, 5 Pouchard Ave., Andover. Phone: 475-5100. We're here to help.

Punchard Ave. Parking Request Is Denied

Employees at The Howe Agency will have to keep fighting for the few parking spaces out in front of their real estate business at 4 Punchard Avenue.

A Zoning Board of Appeals decision has dashed the hopes of the business owners who wanted to construct a parking lot on land one of them owns next door to the company.

Back in July the board heard the request from Douglas N. Howe Jr., and Clifford J. Howe to build the 17-space lot on land at 6 Punchard Avenue, owned by Douglas N. Howe Jr., which is adjacent to the lot where the Howe Agency is located. The businessmen were looking for either a special permit or a variance that would allow them to provide parking for their 30 employees.

Douglas N. Howe Jr. told THE TOWNSMAN that he wasn't going to appeal the board's decision but angrily suggested that a reporter drive to his office and try and find a place to park, adding that town trucks were parked up and down the street.

"There are only two parking spaces out front," he said.

The board decision, written by Chairman Wesley E. Whitney, outlines the reasons both the special permit and variance were denied for parking in the Single Residence A lot.

The variance from the town bylaws requested for the parking area allowed the existence of parking lots and garages in which persons must pay to park, which is not what the Howes were intending, so that request was denied. The special permit request to use Douglas N. Howe Jr.'s neighboring land, which is also home to four apartments, was also denied because although Howe owns the land, it is not on the same lot as the business, at 4 Punchard Avenue, which is zoned General Business.

Sitting on the Howe hearing, on July 5, with Whitney, was Ernest N. Hall, Jane E. Griswold, Maureen M. Franco and David M. Gravallese.
